Wide Open Gambling Again Hits City

Bookies Operate Boldly

Card Games Flourishing

Gambling, any and all kinds, is back in full swing in Mansfield.

Max Mosberg's bookie joint at 12½ South Main is back in business: stud poker games are running at the upstairs Recreation cigar store, North Park street; another stud poker game can be found at the pool hall just to the rear of the Southern hotel and situated on South Main, and crap games take place in an upstairs room across the hall from the Recreation cigar store

Mosberg's place, closed and reopened at irregular intervals for several years, is attracting betters from as far as 40 miles away. A numbe of out-of-towners mingled with the crowd yesterday afternoon watching the winners and entries being posted on blackboards which lined one wall.

The opposite wall has a full length ledge filled with racing forms, all nailed down. To the right as patrons enter the hall are the betting and pay-off windows.

A follow-up on a rumor which was prevalent last June came when one of the approximately 120 persons present approached a News-Journal reporter and asked for directions to the "other joint out on the reformatory road." In June a rumor held that a Cleveland bookie was to be permitted to run a horse book in a downtown location. The existence of this place was not verified.

WOMEN BET

As race results are flashed to the Mosberg betting establishment, a voice drones the winners, mutuel pay-offs are given, and the results posted on the board Constantly changing odds are also given over this speaker as well as a running account of some of the races.

That horse racing attracts all types of persons was proved at Mosberg's Saturday when at one time nine women were in the room. Several of these were with a party, but two or three were avidly poring over racing forms and sending bets up to the window. None of them was seen at the long betting line or at the shorter pay-off line.

Of the known poker games operating, the one at the pool hall behind the Southern hotel goes on behind a half partition separating it from the front end of the store. At the Recreation cigar store, the table is in the open, and a large sign proclaims to those present that the game is strictly five card stud poker. No side betting is allowed.

Both games are of the fifty cent limit type, with the house man dealing and taking a rake from each pot.

An extra card table graces the side room at the Recreation where the dice games are held. The door to this room is kept locked. In order to gain admittance the players push a doorbell and a house man answers.

Business was slow at most of the gambling places Saturday afternoon with the exception of Mosberg's. Useless white tickets with blue numbers and red letters cluttered the floor and a new bunch fluttered down after each race was posted.

On January 31, 1948, gambling activities ceased in Mansfield Police Chief Jesse J Schwab said he had ordered the shutdown, and it would be permanent.

Since that time, Mosberg's horse book has opened and closed several times. At one time with the establishment supposedly closed, bets were taken at a nearby newsstand and carried to the upstairs "office" by runners

Crusade Will Hit At Comics

The crusade against objectionable comic books will move into high gear Wednesday with a meeting of city mothers to form committees that will request dealers to remove the books from their stands

The meeting, to be sponsored by the Mothers club of the Rebecca Grubaugh school will be held at 1:30 p.m. at that school's gymnasium.

Rev. David N. Roller, of the First Presbyterian church; Rev. John G. Gensel, of St. Paul's Lutheran church, Floyd Dent, area scout commissioner and Arthur Glattke, Ohio State Reformatory superintendent compose the speakers panel for the meeting.

Jesse Clark, principal at the Grubaugh school will introduce the speakers and act as moderator of a question period that will follow the prepared speeches.

A spokesman for the Grubaugh Mothers club said the purpose of the meeting is to acquaint mothers with the titles of the comic books which are considered objectionable and at the same time release a list of recommended comic books.

A list has been prepared by R. Y. Davis, fifth vice-president of the Ohio Congress of Parents and Teachers, who has spearheaded the Mansfield drive.

Special invitations have been sent to the Mothers clubs at all city schools. The meeting will be open to all mothers.

All Britain Awaits Child

Doctor Stands All-Night Vigil

LONDON — (AP)— Sir William Gilliatt, who will deliver Princess Elizabeth's baby, took up an all-night vigil at Buckingham palace early today in preparation for the birth of the princess' child. The child is expected this weekend.

Sir John Weir, the royal family physician, has not yet been called to the palace. This fact was interpreted as meaning that Sir William's decision to stay overnight after three visits to the princess yesterday was precautionary.

Sir William decided to remain overnight after having been called back to the palace shortly after 10 p. m. last night (5 p. m Eastern Standard Time). He had paid a previous visit to the 22-year-old princess at 8 p. m.

Crowds of Britons waiting at the palace gates to be near at hand when the royal heir is born dwindled away by midnight to scattered strollers in the misty fog shrouding the broad mall fronting the Buckingham gates. Earlier in the evening the crowds numbered over 1,000.

Yesterday morning Sir William and Sir John paid routine visits to the palace. Shortly after midnight palace correspondents were informed that Sir William would spend the night in the room which had been made ready for him days ago

He slipped back into the building two hours after his first visit without being noticed by a crowd of several hundred Britons which had gathered at the palace gates.

Blue Fan Has Double Loss

The Hamilton Big Blue wasn't the only loser. A coat belonging to one of Hamilton's most loyal fans was lost yesterday, apparently through an erroneous switching of coats in a Mansfield restaurant.

Mrs. Charles C. Thackara of Hamilton told police her black winter-weight coat was taken at the Parkway restaurant. She's the wife of the Hamilton football coach

Mrs. Thackara said she found a black coat of similar design, color and size, but of summer weight instead on the hangar.

Injunction Nips Sale Of Power

Action Taken In Galion Fight

GALION—A temporary injunction yesterday halted plans of the Ohio Public Service company to supply power to two major industrial firms here.

The order sharpened the dispute between two factions in the city government over the long-standing, and bitterly-fought issue of bringing power from outside sources to supplement that supplied by the municipal power plant.

The injunction was filed against the city of Galion and the Ohio Public Service company by City Solicitor George H. Davies. It was granted by Judge Clarence U. Ahl.

The order enjoins the city and the company from any further procedure to purchase electric power from any source other than the Galion Municipal Light and Power plant until a referendum has been taken.

PETITIONS STARTED

Petitions for the referendum began to circulate immediately after the injunction went into effect.

The temporary order also prevents the power company from putting up any poles or fixtures in the city.

The dispute flared into the open when city council passed a temporary ordinance Nov. 4, over Mayor H. H. Hartmann's veto, authorizing an OPS franchise.

In a heated session attended by scores of city residents, council had overridden the veto and given the OPS the green light on the right to supply electric power to the Galion Iron Works and the Central Ohio Steel Products company.

Mayor Hartmann had fought granting a franchise to what he termed a 'foreign company". He had vetoed the franchise ordinance passed by council Oct. 19 because it had been made an emergency measure and did not allow a referendum vote by the people.

Football Fete Date Set Nov. 29

'Tug' Wilson Slated As Banquet Speaker

Kenneth L. "Tug" Wilson, Commissioner of Athletics for the Western Conference, will be the guest speaker at the 13th annual News-Journal football banquet.

Fred Tharp, N-J sports editor and general chairman of the affair, made the announcement last night. Tharp also stated that tickets for the big fete would go on sale tomorrow at 8 a.m. at the News-Journal information desk and at both high schools.

Selection of Wilson as the speaker is in keeping with the policy of securing the best available talent to help honor the football teams of Senior and Madison high schools. Securing a toastmaster and entertainment features remain before the banquet "guest" list is completed.

The 13th annual grid fete is listed for Nov. 29 at 6:45 p.m. at the Richland recreation center. Price of tickets for the dinner and entertainment is $2.50.

Wilson took office as the Conference Commissioner of Athletics May 1, 1945. For twenty years prior to that time he had served as Director of Athletics at Northwestern university.

Shells, Game Plentiful at Season's Eve

An ample supply of ammunition seems assured for Richland county hunters on the eve of the 1948 rabbit and pheasant season, according to Mansfield dealers.

Most hardware stores reported good stocks on hand, but qualified their statements concerning advance stocks by saying:

"We hope to receive enough to finish out the season."

State conservation officials have predicted an excellent season, saying both rabbits and pheasant are more plentiful than for the past few years.

Holiday Sales to Set Mark

Earliest Yule Shopping Starts

Mansfield stores are preparing for their earliest and biggest Christmas shopping season.

Although Thanksgiving is 11 days away, many of the city's stores look like Santa Claus had already visited them.

With all types of merchandise back on the market in large quantities, Mansfielders will have more selection this year than at any time since the war.

Merchants said the majority of shoppers will wait until after Thanksgiving before they begin buying Christmas gifts in large quantities.

The unseasonably warm weather also has delayed shopping, they stated.

SOME START EARLY

However, some Mansfielders are getting an early start and have been making Christmas purchases for the past several weeks. Most of the early buying has been done on the lay-away plan. One store manager said his store has a stockroom full of toys bought for Christmas under the lay-away system.

Mansfield merchants said they expect their patrons to buy more sensible gifts this year. Items such as clothing, which would be necessary anyway, will be purchased instead of frivolous gifts.

One merchant said he thought people would have an eye on their budgets when they do their Christmas shopping this year. Although spending on the whole may be higher this year, individual purchases will be smaller, he said. Thus, a person who spent $5 for a gift last year may spend only $4 this year.

Although there are many new ideas in the toy line, the standard items such as electric trains, teddy bears, and baby dolls are still given prominent display spots.

Gets Purple Heart Thirty Years Late

BORGER, Tex. —(AP)— Thirty years ago—in August, 1918, German machine gun fire in Argonne forest ripped into the shoulder of the U. S. Army Corporal James Austin Collom. Saturday, Collom, now an oil field worker here and 52, received a package from the war department. It contained the Purple Heart.

Thief Steals Blind Man's Life Savings

MOBILE, Ala. —(AP)—Eighty-year-old Jefferson D. West is blind in one eye and a cataract is dimming his sight in the other.

He arranged to have an operation to save his remaining vision. Wednesday he drew out what was left of his life's savings, $380, to pay for the operation and closed his bank account.

Saturday he told police that while he napped and the rest of his family was away, a thief slipped into the room and stole all his money.

Top Ranking Harmonizers Coming Here

Quartet Parade Scheduled Dec. 4

Barbershop harmony center of the world for a day—that will be Mansfield's role on Saturday, Dec. 4. On that date the city will play host to the nation's top ranking quartets, brought here under auspices of the local SPEBSQSA chapter.

To accommodate the crowds anticipated for the event, the sponsors have arranged a double program, one to be held at Senior high school and the other at John Simpson high scool.

The impressive array of "tonsorial" talent booked for the Mansfield Parade of Quartets tops that of previous big city shows of a similar nature, according to local chapter members.

"So far as we have been able to ascertain we will have more of the top champion quartets than have ever been brought together for a program, except at the annual competition for international championship," declared H. H. Clingan, chapter president.

Listed for appearance are The Pittsburghers of Pittsburgh, Pa., international champions 1948-49; The Doctors of Harmony of Elkhart, Ind., past international champions, 1947-48; The Jolly Fellows of Dayton, O., 1948-49 champions of the Ohio Southwestern district, comprising all of Ohio, and part of Pennsylvania and West Virginia; The Buzz Saws of Columbus, 1947-48 district champions; The Tom Cats of Massillon, 1946-47 district champions; The Tigertown Four of Massillon, 1948-49 district runners up; and the Steel Blenders of Lorain, third place district winners this year.

In addition there will be the Memory Laners of Canton. The Yachtsmen of Lakewood, and The Staff Riders fo Mansfield. The Mansfield chapter chorus will also take part in the program.

Identical programs will be given at both auditoriums under the direction of two masters of ceremony. These will be C. E. (Jerry) Kalbfleisch, Richland county common pleas judge, who appeared as interlocutor in the chapter's minstrel last year, and Robert O. (Bob) Richards.

SPEBSQSA, Inc —members pronounce the mouthful of initials "Spebsk"—was originated in 1938 as the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America. After a modest beginning, the organization has mushroomed to 500 chapters. The Mansfield chapter received its charter on June 28, 1947.

AFL Fights Canada Reds

CINCINNATI — (AP) — The AFL, with nearly 200,000 members in Canada, called for a showdown with alleged communists in the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress.

President William Green told a news conference that the AFL's big international unions, which pay the expenses of their Canadian offshoots, are worried over the influence of communists north of the border.

At a pre-convention meeting today, the AFL's top leaders—the powerful executive council—will hear a delegation of Canadian affiliates call for a purge of their own locals.

Carriers Extending Embargo

200 Ships Tied Up

NEW YORK — (AP)—The rail embargo on export freight was extended to all major east coast ports Saturday as the dock workers' strike immobilized almost 200 ships.

The Association of American Railroads placed a ban on nearly all goods destined for overseas shipment out of Philadelphia, Baltimore, Wilmington, Del., and Hampton Roads, Va.

This was an extension of the embargo clamped Friday on freight moving to New York and Boston.

The ordinary week-end lull minimized the effects of the strike of some 65,000 longshoremen on its first official day.

But the usually teeming waterfronts were expected to be deserted Monday. Marshall plan shipments as well as ordinary commercial maritime business will be hit drastically if the walkout is a long one.

A survey indicated these ships were tied up by the strike: Baltimore 95, New York 52, Philadelphia 32, Boston 8 and Hampton Roads 3

Actually 202 vessels were idle in New York's great port but customs officials indicated only 52 of these could be attributed to the stevedores' walkout.

MAYOR FLIES BACK

Joseph P. Ryan, president of the AFL International Longshoremen's association, who called the strike, said he expected no developments until Monday when two union meetings are scheduled.

One of the sessions will involve all AFL maritime unions.

Ryan said he was going to play golf over the week-end but could be reached in the event Mayor William O'Dwyer wants to talk with him.

The mayor, who has interrupted a California vacation because of the tieup, is due here this morning by plane.

Ryan said the necessity for the walkout was a "national calamity." He called it after ILA members had voted by a large margin to reject a wage settlemen negotiated with shipping operators by the union's leaders.

Federal mediators got the parties together after the union vote was announced, but the employers said they would not raise their 10-cents-an hour increase offer turned down by the ballots of the rank-and-file longshoremen.

The shutdown in U. S. Atlantic coast ports made a boom town out of Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Several transatlantic liners were diverted there including the Mauretania and the Britannic of the Cunard White Star line and the Veendam of the Holland-America line.

U. S. customs officers were flown there to expedite handling of passengers. Special trains took travelers to and from New York.

Big Reward Spurs Hunt

BOULDER, Colo — (AP) — Rewards totalling $11,200 spurred the search for the rape-slayer of 18-year-old Theresa Foster last night.

Colorado university's board of regents announced they would give $10,000 to the person who provided information leading to the killer's arrest. Boulder's newspaper, the Camera, has collected $1,200 in contributions from residents of this college town. This will be added to the reward jackpot.

Miss Foster, a freshman engineering student, disappeared Tuesday night while returning to her rooming house from a meeting of a Catholic students' organization.

Her body was found Thursday on the snow-covered bank of a creek nine miles south of here. A coroner's inquest stated that she apparently was driven to the spot after having been killed, then thrown over the railing of the bridge to the ground below.

DEMANDS SESSION

MILWAUKEE — (AP) — Rep. Charles Kersten (R-Wis) demanded Saturday a special session of Congress be called immediately, "facing up to the Soviet world threat which now endangers our civilization."

Mansfield Has New Novelist

Jane Williams Tells Romantic Story In 'No Other Star'

Jane Williams . . . First novel published.

By KEN WOODMAN

Mansfield has a new novelist. She is Jane Williams, former News-Journal columnist and feature writer and now secretary of the Mansfield Community Chest. Mrs. Williams' novel is titled "No Other Star." It is published by Conjure House, Detroit, and will be in Mansfield book stores Nov. 27.

A romantic novel, "No Other Star" opens in a small Ohio town that is recognizable as Upper Sandusky, Mrs. Williams' birthplace, although the place is known in the book as Morrallton, named for one of the principal families in the story.

The village background is excellently drawn. The reader sees its streets and its people, becomes familiar with the rural scenes nearby, and above all learns the dramatic legends entwined in its history.

All this is woven smoothly into a story that moves at a steady pace toward a gripping climax, which it would be unfair to reveal. From Morrallton, the action shifts to Columbus and New York city. It carries a sympathetic and informative chapter on former President Warren G. Harding.

Mrs Williams knew Harding and her story presents the man in a much fairer light than have most histories of his era. There is no attempt to cover-up the shameful things that happened during his administration, but there is a clearer and kindlier delineation of the man himself than has been made elsewhere to date.

Louis Bromfield, Mansfield's gift to the international world of letters, has written a statement for the jacket of Mrs. Williams' book. In it he says:

"No Other Star is a good book. Once you start it you'll find it difficult to put down until the last page has been turned. The fact is important at a moment when novels based upon character and good story telling have become extremely scarce—so scarce that complaints have risen throughout the country from readers, publishers and reviewers alike.

NEW TALENT ARRIVES

"Not only is the story told with excitement, but its quality and kind indicate the arrival of a new talent in the field of fiction. Jane Williams knows how to write, to arouse that sort of interest in a reader which builds constantly toward the end of the book. You come to know her characters much as you know the people about you; better in fact, for Mrs. Williams, with the talent of a true novelist, sees inside them and tells you things which the aver-

25-Mile View Possible From Windows

Kettering's Hilltop Bungalow Readied

By BILL HERRING
N-J State Editor

LOUDONVILLE — A five-room brick veneer bungalow, boasting three scenic windows affording a 25-mile view from a hilltop three miles northwest of here, is being readied for Charles F. (Boss) Kettering. He hopes to have it furnished for Yuletime use.

Kettering, a General Motors director and former vice president in charge of GM research, purchased nine acres on the hilltop near his family homestead, Crestdale, to construct the bungalow on. It will have an oil burning furnace and a large recreation room in the basement so it can be used the year around.

Original plans called for a larger showplace but Kettering decided on the bungalow to conform with other residences in the area.

Spotlighting the bungalow's architectural design is a 17 by 45 foot living room extending across the entire front of the house. There will be two bedrooms, two baths and a kitchen which will be paneled in knotty pine.

Rex Long, Loudonville, R. D. 1, manages the 250-acre Kettering Crestdale farm in addition to his own 110 and 100 acre farms in this area. His daughter, Phyllis, 20, a senior in home economics at Ohio State university and a niece of Kettering, will furnish and decorate the bungalow.

Kettering visits Crestdale on a near-weekly schedule and Tuesday returned from a flight to New York City to check on the bungalow ere he departed. Kettering's residence is split between his home near Dayton and the Book-Cadillac hotel in Detroit where he has lived for 28 years.

The GM executive developed the automobile self-starter, ethyl gasoline and now is working on a high compression engine which stresses fuel company. His wife died two years ago.

Kettering, now 72, has a son, Eugene, who is in charge of engineering at the Electromotive plant in Lagrange, Ill., but resides in Hinsdale, Ill.

The bungalow being erected near here, will not be a permanent home, as no one is moving in for living quarters, so contractors are not being pressed on completion dates and Phyllis is given time to make her purchases for the interior at a pace assuring better selection.

The electrical work on the bungalow will be completed this week and contractors feel that another month will be required to put on the finishing touches. A 200-foot deep water well has been drilled since the land was purchased last fall. Only a delay on materials will delay the completion schedule now, contractors say.

The bungalow will have all double windows and will be insulated to provide all-season use.

Kettering always admired the view from the hilltop where he acquired title to the land to construct the bungalow. One may see beyond Bellville by looking out the scenic windows.

Each fall a Columbus family drives through Mansfield on their way back from summering up North. This year, they report that their cottage is now almost waterproof. The fishing is good. The berry patch is yielding handsomely.

"I'm thinking," said the husband, "we could be pretty snug up there by the lake a few years from now when the kids 'fly the nest.' It would be a pretty swell place to hole up the year round. All we need is to get across the lake on the first of each month for our income checks from Uncle Sam and the Phoenix Mutual."

A lake cottage may not be your idea of happiness in old age. But it's a wonderful feeling to know that someday you can settle down in your own dream spot . . . completely free from any money worries.

There is a way to make your special dreams come true. And it's described in our free booklet, "How To Get A Guaranteed Income For Life." Send for your copy today.

Rose Mary Lyle Wed Saturday To Mr. Sroufe

WHITE lace over silver metallic was worn by Miss Rose Mary Lyle for her marriage to Ralph H. Sroufe of Lima on Saturday morning at 9:30 at St. Peter's Catholic church. The double ring open church service was attended by many relatives and friends.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Lyle, 117 West Second street, and Charles K. Lyle of Detroit. Mr. Sroufe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Sroufe of Lima.

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Lyle wore a gown of ankle length, made with full skirt. Completing her ensemble were silver gauntlets, silver slippers, and a white illusion fingertip length veil, held in place by a silver band, caught at the sides with silver bows.

Mrs. L. D. Kizis of Detroit was matron of honor, wearing a forest green lace gown over gold metallic. Her accessories were in gold and her headband was of gold leaf.

John C. Lyle, brother of the bride, served Mr. Sroufe as best man.

Ushers were Lester Kizis of Detroit and Walter Sroufe of Lima, brother of the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the Mansfield-Leland hotel for the immediate families and bridal party.

Later an informal reception was held in the afternoon at the Lyle home.

Following a wedding trip the couple will reside at 231 Spring street, Lima.

The bride has been employed in the classified department of the Mansfield News-Journal.

MISS BETTY JEAN SCOTT

Mr. and Mrs. Milford Scott, R. D. 4, Mansfield, are announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Betty Jean, to Richard Roller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carson Roller, Fleming Falls road. The wedding will be an event of early spring. Miss Scott attended Madison high school and is employed at Shriver's Laundry. Mr. Roller is an employe of the Barnes Manufacturing company.

Horoscope

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Monday, November 15

Monday's forecast is for the sudden precipitation of some unlooked-for factor or development which may have the power to swerve the wheels of progress off balance. An error of judgment, a false move, overestimating values, or an entirely unpredictable or unique situation may arise to upset cherished plans. The best hope for readjustment or ultimate success might be quite as sudden and dramatic a stroke of genius or innovation. As judgment seems to be emotional it may be well to reconstruct programs.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, may bolster themselves for the unforeseen development of strange, irregular or sensational visitation, calling for most astute, audacious and clever manipulation. All sorts of situations or unique experiences may block cherished ideals and ideas, probably owing to mistakes of judgment, erratic impulses or some rash emotional urge. With serious analysis, a sagacious rearrangement of plans or a clever stroke of ingenuity it is possible to effectually avoid the "rocks."

A child born on this day while probably brilliant, progressive and ambitions, may also be prone to fligthy judgment.

Five Circles to Meet Thursday

Five circles of the Central Methodist church will convene this Thursday for their respective meetings. Mrs. Wayne Miller, 503 Forest avenue, will entertain Circle Two; Mrs. Perry Hilligoss, 258 Elmwood drive, will be hostess to Circle Three; Mrs. W. B. Wert, 387 Sherman place, Circle Four; Mrs. Paul Miller, 478 South Main street, Circle Five, and Mrs. Ethel Blaney, 173 Chilton avenue, Circle Six.

All but Circle Six will hold a dessert luncheon at 1 p. m. Circle Six will convene at 7:30 p. m. luncheon at the home of Mrs. Bert Campbell, 550 Cook road. Mrs. Arthur Beidelschies will serve as associate hostess.

MEET MONDAY

The Royal Regal Garden club will meet tomorrow for a 1 o'clock

Kum-a-Long Class Holds Social

The Kum-A-Long class of the First Luthern church held a social meet recently at the parish house. The hostesses for the "come as you are" party were Miss Beatrice McCune and Miss Rosine Dickson.

The next meeting will be held Nov. 24 at the home of Miss McCune, 109 Helen avenue. Miss Dickson will assist her. The group will meet at the parish house and attend Thanksgiving services together and then go to the hostess' home for games and refreshments. At that time new officers of the class will be installed. The installation committee includes Miss Marilyn Stoup, chairman, Miss Betty Neibel and Don Rettig.

THIS GLASS FOR "Good looks"

Just like a dress shop checkup—this triple-view mirror of L-O-F Polished Plate Glass! You can avoid those many little embarrassing lapses in personal grooming—the stocking run, the corkscrew seam, the sagging slip and the zipper you didn't quite ZIP!—with this first aid to "Good Looks!"

And such a mirror brings good looks to the room, too. It adds a sense of spaciousness—a central point of interest—a bright reflection of decorative features.

This is but one of the many modern applications of mirrors made of Libbey-Owens-Ford Polished Plate Glass. And these modern mirror effects cost less than you'd think.

We'll gladly give you information, prices, and arrange for installation. A telephone call does it.

Do You Want A Home Instead of a House?
Before Nov. 17, we will present a plan that assures security and happiness to ambitious men who want to make money to give their families the comforts of life. This opportunity today is giving men associated with us the certainty of buying new homes. Are you living in a house instead of a home? You may be working long hours with no step forward year to year. If you can't save one-third of your earnings monthly to get the things you want for your family—there are two main reasons for this: 1. You are not making enough money in your present job. 2. You are not in the right position (for you, personally.) Because of the shocking percentage of people in these two classifications our corporation has allowed this office to show you an honest presentation, the means to a secure future with our organization. Since this is not the ordinary sales proposition, we will present our plan only by appointment in your home in the presence of your wife. Her happiness is contigent on your success, and we want you both to know the facts, that we know will help you if you have the qualifications and are selected by our company. Write Box 457, care of News-Journal.

Stock Mart Steady, No Hot Trading

Gains Hold Light Edge

NEW YORK—(AP)—The stock market coasted through a slow session Saturday with only minor variation in prices.

Gains had a slight edge over losses but turnover was too meager to indicate a decisive trend. The general undertone, though, was steady.

Some traders have expressed disappointment because prices have not rebounded sharply after the last post-election pounding on Tuesday. The market has remained relatively stable since then, however, and at the same time shown an ability to absorb considerable selling without too much trouble.

Slanting ahead most of the short session were U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Woolworth, International Harvester, Schenley, American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, Kennecott Copper, Dow Chemical, Philip Morris, Standard Oil (NJ), and Transcontinental and Western Air.

Tending downward most of the time were U. S. Rubber, Western Union, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge Copper, J. C. Penney, Santa Fe, Gulf Oil and Eastman Kodak.

American and Foreign Power $6 and $7 preferreds dropped sharply to new lows for the year.

Corn Takes Slight Drop

CHICAGO —(AP)— Corn met selling pressure on the Board of Trade Saturday, largely because of nervousness created by a strike of longshoremen at northern Atlantic coast ports. Other cereals were mostly lower, but wheat showed relative steadiness.

The market opened on losses extending to a little more than a cent in corn. Several times during the day attempts were made at rallies, but on each occasion corn fell back before it could get up to the previous close.

Railroad embargoes were placed on export shipments to ports from Virginia to Massachusetts. However, these embargoes did not apply to grain if shippers could find room in elevators at the ports to store the grain.

Wheat closed ¼ lower to ⅛ higher, December $2.32⅜-½, corn was 1¾-1½ lower, December $1.41-$1.40⅞, oats were ⅛-⅜ lower, December 80¾, rye was 1½-1¾ lower, December $1.77, soybeans were ¾-1½ higher, November $2.59, and lard was 15 to 30 cents a hundred pounds lower, November $18.80.

Fakes Knockout, Captures Robber

NORWALK — (AP) — Harold Wilhelm, 22, pretended he was knocked out yesterday when two men beat him up in robbing a jewelry store at Monroeville of about $5,000 in jewels.

After they left, Wilhelm, a clerk, set out in pursuit and captured one of them. Wilhelm held the man at gunpoint until Marshal John Gathergood arrived. The marshal said a small part of the loot was recovered.

Parole Won By Doctor

OLYMPIA, Wash. —(AP)—Dr. Kent W. Berry of Olympia, sentenced to a life term in prison in a sensational abduction and torture case nearly 10 years ago, will be paroled from state prison Monday.

Chairman John J. Quine said the doctor's outstanding work in the prison influenced the board of prison terms and paroles.

He said that through the doctor's efforts the penitentiary death rate had dropped from approximately 16 a year to practically nothing, with at least 60 lives being saved.

Dr. Berry was sentenced to life after his conviction in the abduction and torture of Irving Baker, retired coast guard officer.

During the trial, Dr. Berry accused Baker of having been attentive to Mrs. Berry. Baker denied the accusation. The Berrys have since been divorced.

Highways Hurling New Threat Against Railroad Business

Trucks Gaining Edge Over Big Rail Rivals

NEW YORK—(AP)—Highways are hurling a new major threat against the railroad business.

So far it is only a threat, and so far it has attracted principal attention in the steel industry.

Competition from truckers on highways is based on three factors that give them a current competitive edge over their giant rivals on rails.

They are:

1. Rail freight rate increases.
2. A shortage of freight cars to haul record steel production.
3. A change from the basing point method of pricing steel products to an FOB basis.

The railroads have increased their freight rates about 44 per cent since mid-1946, and they have a petition for another 13 per cent boost to be heard Nov. 30 before the Interstate Commerce Commission. Truck rates have gone up sectionally by 20 to 50 per cent since pre-war.

Each time freight rates go higher, more shippers change to trucks if they can save money. Trucks before the war did about a quarter as much business as railroads. Now they are doing better than 35 per cent as much.

Freight car loadings this year are about 3 per cent under a year ago. Truckers are hauling about 20 per cent more than in 1947.

Steel production now is running near an annual record high rate. But there are only 289,107 railroad gondola cars (as of Oct.1) in service as against 301,587 a year ago. The Association of American Railroads said the shortage of such cars is reported from almost all sections including the steel areas of Pittsburgh, Youngstown and Bethlehem.

If steel customers can't load their orders on freight cars, they turn to trucks and to waterway transportation. Truck - trailer manufacturers report a recent large increase in orders for flatbed trailers suitable for carrying steel.

HIGHWAYS NEED REPAIRS

Incidentally, many have voiced fears that the nation's highways, which faced a mammoh $1,000,000,000 repair bill last spring as an accumulation of wartime neglect, would be further pounded down by the increased truck traffic.

Truckers belittle these fears and point out that the American Automobile Manufacturers Association estimated tha. all taxes paid by all trucks last year amounted to $934,123,000 which would pave a lot of highways.

The third reason for increased truck competition—the change in quoting steel prices to FOB mill from the basing point method under which steel mills absorbed some of the freight—also is linked with high freight charges.

Steel customers since July must pay the same mill price, and the freight to their plant is added. That made them conscious of mounting freight costs by rail. A number of them changed to truck, where possible, because rates were cheaper.

The first two factors—higher freight rates and car shortages—were given by the head of one of the nation's largest steel corporations as the prime reasons for what he called an "inclination to change to trucks from railroads."

Railroad authorities admit both reasons and contend they are temporary. The cost of operating railroads is rising. Hence the demand for higher freight rates. The cost of doing business by truck also is going up Truckers, the railroads say, also will find they must get more revenue to stay in business. Equality of rate increases, they say, will return transportation competition to the traditional basis.

Railroads as of Oct 1 had 17,835 gondolas on order as against only 9,088 a year ago. As the cars go into service and as the unprecedented demand for steel eases, delivery by rail will be easier.

One of the largest steel companies so far doesn't believe the increase in trucking of their products is of significant volume. Another says it might become so. A third is adding to its truck platform loading facilities.

BUSINESS INCREASING

The American Trucking association says the loading of iron and steel on thrucks increased sharply this year over last—38.7 per cent in August, 40.7 in July, 30.8 in June, 7.4 in May, 25.8 in April, and so per cent in March.

But lest too hasty conclusions be drawn from these figures, the association also pointed out that in August of 1947, the movement of iron and steel by truck increased 16.8 per cent over August of 1946, and in July of last year the increase was 48.5 per cent over a year before.

by truck is representative, a trucking association spokesman said, but he declined to draw any sweeping conclusions from them. "I would hesitate to say that this difference in any way indicates a shifting of this type of traffic to the motor truck."

The railroads recognize their costs are rising and that their rates are rising to a danger point—a point where shippers can't afford to use rails and must employ an alternative.

Laurence F. Whittemore, president of the New Haven railroad, goes beyond that point. "Rather than the issue being one of pricing ourselves out of a market," he said, "the issue is whether industrial management will be far sighted enough to pay a sufficient price for rail transportation. Socialized transportation is inevitably the forerunner of socialized industr."

Transfer Action Due

The appropriation and transfer of funds totaling $36,388 to permit the operation of city departments until the end of the fiscal year on Dec. 31 are the major items of business for the special city council meeting tomorrow at 7:30 p. m.

Funds to be appropriated total $33,900, including $25,000 for the water department (for payroll and electric power purposes;) $8,700 for various street department needs and $200 for the municipal court.

The $2,488 in fund transfers include reshuffings in the following departments: street, park, police, municipal court, water, and health.

Council also will be asked to approve a measure authorizing the service-safety director to advertise for bids on the sale of two 1931 Ford dump trucks

Get Report On Traffic

An analysis of the Mansfield traffic program which won for the city the 1947 Ohio Traffic Safety contest for cities in the 25,000 to 50,000 population group will be given at a meeting Tuesday at 8 p m. in the municipal court room at the city building.

Mayor Roy W. Vaughn has requested all city and school officials and representatives of safety committees of civic clubs to attend. He said the public is welcome.

A representative of the Ohio Traffic safety committee will present the report prepared by the National Traffic safety council.

Mayor Vaughn pointed out that the analysis provides a means to compare Mansfield's traffic safety program with that of other cities and to devise means of improvement.

Secretaries Hear Priest

Rev John E. Duffey, famed Catholic priest and former war chaplain from New London, will speak to members of the Mansfield chapter of the National Secretaries association, Tuesday night.

The occasion will be the second annual "Bosses Night" when members take their bosses out to dinner The party will be held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel ballroom at 6:30 p m Father Duffey, as he is known in the New London area, will relate his experiences while a prisoner on Bataan and his participation in two "death marches" on the Philippine Islands as a Japanese hostage

In addition to the address of the evening, there will be special music, including a barbershop quartet.

When toddlers eat at the table with grownups it will save the tablecloth if a plastic mat is put at her place, choose an attractive, appropriate design that a boy or girl will enjoy.

'49 Cadillac Due Soon

The new 1949 Cadillac will make its Mansfield debut at the Swisher Cadillac company this week

The Swisher agency has been promised three new cars this month.

The 1949 Cadillac, pride of the five makes of General Motors cars, has a longer hood line than earlier models and a lowered grille extending across the front fenders to the wheel openings. Interiors are completely new, featuring a newly-designed instrument panel, new door moldings, and trim.

The new eight-cylinder valve-in-head, V-type, 160 horsepower engine is reputed to have enough power to take its driver from a standstill to 80 miles an hour in 30 seconds The company claims the engine is 15 to 20 per cent more economical in fuel consumption under most driving conditions.

Hydramatic drive is continued as optional equipment on all models. The company says the car has undergone more than a million test miles.

World's Air Getting Dirtier

Donora Smog Deaths Might Be Warning

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(AP Science Editor)

NEW YORK — (AP) — The air of the entire world is getting dirtier, and the 19 eaths from smog at Donora, Pa., may be a warning.

Much of this extra dirt is invisible, a chemical fog, made of gases from an industrialized, motorized civilization.

The facts on world-wide pollution are published in the year book of the Carnegie Institution of Washington. These studies were made over oceans, the areas with the earth's purrst air.

"The air about us," this report says," is gradually becoming polluted with foreign gases. These gases owe their origin to varied industrial operations and to erupted gases from volcanoes. The polluted atmosphere is not confined to land areas, but extends far out to sea. — The products of pollution appear to be gradually accumulating in the air over the ocean near industrial areas, near the principal ocean trade routes, and also over the more isolated regions of the ocean."

This over-ocean pollution, says the report, apparently about doubled from 1914 to 1929.

SPECULATION DEVELOPES

"The added industrial activities of nations since 1929 in the preparation for war," the report goes on," and the release of vast quantities of foreign gases through the various war activities, give rise to speculation as to the extent to which such accumulation in the atmosphere has been augmented, particularly in the war zones themselves."

Two examples are given. Air samples around Tucson, Arizona, and Watheroo, Australia, are cited to show that there have been large increases during the last few years, even in regions remote from heavy pollution sources.

The carnegie report does not specifically mention the pollution created by the average citizen, and his car exhaust. A New York City study found the air of this metropolis laden with four to five tons of dirt—more than 90 per cent soot—originating largely from office buildings, apartments and homes.

The air of cities is estimated as about 800 times more polluted than ocean air. In an average city Dr. Helmut Landsberg, of Pennsylvania State college, calculated that each person breathed in about nine hundred million very tiny particles — called nuclei — every minute, and that ninety million of them were retained.

Pneumonias have been definitely connected to dirty air. There was an increase in lung troubles in the American dust bowl. The Mellon institute, Pittsburgh, reported increases in pneumonia in smoky air. Dr. H. B. Meller, of the institute, published an air study showing that during seven cold, smoky months of the year, city death rates rose above rural. But in the five sunny months the city deaths dropped.

There have been suppositions that city dusts screen out the sun's rays which kill air-borne disease germs. An excess of rickets in city children over country children has been blamed partly on smoke shading the ultra-violet sun rays which make bone-building vitamin D in youngsters. Lung cancer has been blamed on dirty air, with no proof.

In disasters like Donora, industrial gases have been immediate targets of suspicion.

The previous greatest disaster was in the Meuse river valley, in Belgium, in 1930, where there were several thousand cases of lung trouble and 60 deaths within three days. Cattle, birds and even rats were killed.

The official investigations failed to spot the specific cause, but there was some evidence for blaming flourine gas from steel and other industries.

Since World War II, there has been a tremendous increase in the production and use of flourine in the United States. There have been no reports of flourine air poisoning from its manufacture, but Philip Saddler, Philadelphia chemist, said he found evidences of flourine from Donora metalmaking.

DANGER GROWING

Atomic energy, which contains the greatest of all potential dangers for poisoning the air, promises to be the turning point toward world-wide policing for pure air.

At the Brookhaven National laboratory of the United States Atomic Energy commission at Upton, Long Island, the first post-war atomic furnace, or reactor, is about to go into operation.

This plant has one dangerous gas, argon. It is dangerous because it is radioactive. The gas loses half of its risky rays in about eight minutes, and all the danger is gone in a little more than an hour.

This gas will be emitted from the top of a stack 300 feet high, an altitude insuring safety, but the commission's precautions go further. About a mile away, there is a 410 foot-tall weather tower, to watch for unusual conditions, like smog, when gases from the tall stack can drift down to earth. Whenever that happens the weather men will close the atomic furnace.

This monitoring is something new. It can be expected to spread when American industry begins to use atomic power plants. Monitoring will be even more essential in other parts of the world, because wherever coal is expensive, and that is most of the world outside the United States, atomic energy is likely to become the main source of industrial power.

Ancient House Still In Use

More than 300 years old and still occupied, the Hoxie House in Sandwich, Mass., is believed to be the oldest house on Cape Cod and possibly in the United States.

Basis for claims of its age is a brick, with the date 1637 burned into its side, which was part of a large chimney taken out of the house in the middle of the 19th century by Abraham Hoxie, a whaling captain.

The house is distinguished by its salt-box roof, with a short slant in front and a long, drooping slope reaching almost to the ground in the rear.

The roof originally was thatched but now it is covered with fire resistant shingles.

Other characteristics of the Hoxie House are its thick walls, recessed, small-paned windows with wide ledges on the inside, and wide floor boards.

Situated on a bluff, the Hoxie House overlooks Shawme Lake. During the Civil War, Captain Hoxie mounted a cannon facing the lake and the townspeople dubbed the house Fort Hoxie.

Water Rate Study Ready for Council Action

Drastic Changes Unlikely

Committee to Get Report

By SHELDON BINN

Sanitary Engineer B. V. BeVier has completed his seven-month survey of Mansfield's water rates and submitted the report to Service-Safety Director Earl T. Garrison.

Garrison said the report would be forwarded to city council's water committee for study.

Although the report will not be made public until the water committee has completed its study, it is believed that BeVier has not recommended any drastic change in the present water rates.

The present rate schedule went into effect April 1 of this year by order of former Service-Safety Director E. L. Morgan.

At the time, it was announced that the rates were temporary, pending the outcome of BeVier's study to determine equitable rates.

The increases put into effect at that time ranged from 50 to 80 per cent and were designed to increase water department revenue to pay off an additional $1,200,000 in waterworks bonds floated a short time after the rate increase went into effect.

At the time the rate increase was announced, Mansfield's larger industries, through the Manufacturers club, lodged a protest against the rate increase, which boosted industrial rates 80 per cent and domestic rates only 50 per cent.

The industrial interests recommended that rates be boosted the same percentags in each category. However, the group did not take any drastic action at the time, pending the outcome of BeVier study.

If the report recommends that the industrial rates remain substantially the same as at present, and the service director acts as provided by law to make such rates permanent, industry is expected to lodge a forcible protest.

'No Other Star' Tale Romantic

Local Woman Writes Novel

age citizen never knows about his friends or even the members of his own family.

"The story is as American as the first flag made by Betsy Ross. It reaches into the depths, and touches at times the heights, of the pattern of customs, morals and behavior which has come to be called the American pattern. Beginning in a small Middle West town, portrayed with nostalgia and more than mere reality, it moves through time from the beginning of the century to the end of the roaring, bawdy twenties.

"It is essentially the story of an ambitious and brilliant woman who, for all her brains and talent, is never able to escape the fact that first of all she is a woman; nor to escape the fascination of one man whose personality dominates her life from the time she is a small girl.

"It is not, however, a one-character story. The background is rich and changing and filled with characters which are three dimensional and living. The whole book is invested with that vitality without which no good novel ever has been written."

The story behind the publication of "No Other Star" is interesting. Mrs. Williams began writing it in 1941 on her "day off" each week while working on the editorial staff of the News-Journal.

EDITOR PRODDED WRITING

"I never would have written the book," she says, "if it had not been for G. J. Kochenderfer, the editor. He came out to my desk at least once a week and said, 'Well, have you started writing your novel yet?' His insistence got me going."

Mrs. Williams explains that the idea for the book came to her from a letter she received from an inmate of the Ohio State Reformatory. In the letter, the man had said, "I always thought I was headed for some dark destiny but there was nothing within myself to hold me back."

"Dark Destiny" was the working title under which the book was written.

When the manuscript was completed, Mrs. Williams showed it to Sam Vining, Mansfield sales expert and author of several sales textbooks. Vining asked if he might send it to a friend of his who was a publisher in Detroit.

"Of course," Vining said, "they won't publish it because they don't handle fiction, but George Taubenec's opinion might be valuable."

BOOK ACCEPTED

What Vining was unaware of was that at a board of directors' meeting of the firm headed by Taubenec it had just been decided to go into the fiction publishing business.

Mrs. Williams' book was read and accepted by Taubenec as the first fiction publication of Conjure House. Payment is to be made in the form of royalty on sales. The author invested no money in the publication.

Mrs. Williams signed a contract in 1946 which calls for a second novel with the same locale. She is now planning this new story.

Mrs. Williams explains that "No Other Star" is in no sense autobiographical nor are its characters real people. She used as material a number of episodes and stories which she had encountered in her 23 years of newspaper writing, weaving these into the general theme of the fatalistic love of a man and a woman.

Beginning her newspaper career in Upper Sandusky by writing a column of school news for the local paper, Mrs. Williams later joined the staff of the Spokane (Wash.) Press after attending Spokane university. She also worked for the Los Angeles Examiner, and spent 13 years on the staff of The News-Journal.

Paul Williams, husband of the Mansfield novelist, is a member of the composing room staff of The News-Journal. He is credited by his wife with having made an important contribution to the work in his careful proof-reading.

She relates that his most frequent comment on the book as its writing progressed was: "Your spelling gets worse and worse!" His proof-reading seems to have taken care of any such fault that might have been overlooked by the publisher.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams live at 373 Park avenue west.

Pledge of Allegiance to Flag

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Must Combat Communist Propaganda

IT WOULD be a distasteful job for Americans and Britons to go about the world proclaiming the part we had in the winning of the late war. Yet that is one of the things which may have to be done toward prevention of another war.

An article written by Mao Tse-tung, chairman of the Chinese communists, for the official magazine of the Cominform, contains some interesting statements. Mao wrote that "The world revolutionary united front headed by the Soviet Union has defeated Fascist Germany, Italy and Japan." Later, on the familiar theme of American imperialism, he said the capitalist world is suffering "panic in the face of impending extinction."

A great danger to world peace lies in the possibility that the communist leaders who keep repeating such statements may begin to believe them. They are based on the same wholly wrong idea which lured Hitler and the Japanese war lords to disaster for their nations. This is the idea that the Western democracies are decadent and weak, incapable of fighting for the principles they uphold. It would be tragic for all the world if that false idea again should be accepted by the leaders of a great nation with opposing interests.

Those who speak of the strength of America usually are accused of saber-rattling and war-mongering. But it is not enough just to be strong; we must also make sure that we are not thought to be weak.

Like It or Not, There'll Be Snow

ANY DAY NOW Mansfielders may awaken to find a covering of snow on the ground, and this will be accepted without surprise, as people in this area are accustomed to the sight of snow at this season—although always hopeful that it will not go to extreme of that November 1913 snowfall of several feet, which closed schools, disrupted transportation and stymied business for three or four days.

Many may not know, however, that not one of the 48 states is entirely immune from snow, with even Florida's central section subject to light snow and a touch of frost, according to a bulletin of the National Geographic Society, which keeps tab on such things.

And in sunny California, weather bureau records show, heaviest single and seasonal snowfalls have occurred on the western slopes of the Sierra Nevada mountains.

Chicago, which appears to be the way-station for cold waves sweeping toward Ohio from the northwest, usually has one snow flurry in October, with 19 recorded before New Year's day out of its winter allotment of 58.

It is explained that snow is not "frozen water," as are hail and sleet, but is a water vapor that crystallizes directly into ice. When formed in very cold temperatures it falls as glittering, diamond-like dust, but if formed just below the freezing point the ice crystals mat together in large, moist complex flakes, no two of which are exactly alike.

An interesting sidelight is that, because of holding so much air, snow is a good insulator, protecting plant and animal life from extreme cold. Animals hibernate beneath it with no fear of lack of air, and there are records of men having been rescued alive after having been buried in snowdrifts two full days.

Cheerful View of Parents' Problems

PARENTS sometimes take the problems of their adolescent children too seriously. Some also are needlessly alarmed by the publicity given to juvenile criminals who seem to have one or two traits in common with their own offspring.

This cheerful attitude was expressed by Dr. Fritz Redl of Wayne University in a talk before a group of parents and youth workers in Chicago recently. The speaker declared that at least eight years of the wrong kind of living are necessary to develop criminal tendencies in a normal youngster. The fact that both parents work or that the youngster reads comic books need not necessarily disturb the parents, he said.

Dr. Redl suggested as a positive approach to the problems of adolescence that parents have fun with their children, that they also have some social life apart from the family, and that they devote a little time to figuring out the children. He advocated giving the young people some way for learning about life instead of keeping them too much sheltered.

"It is an accepted fact that young people who are surrounded by fun and affection at home are not likely to be found seeking them in unwholesome surroundings. Worrying and sermonizing appeal less to the young than a light rein and a free rein, which are practical when wholesome activities are presented in an attractive light.

Material For Future Archeologists

The University of Chattanooga (Tennessee) is erecting a new stadium. If the gloomy forecasts of some pessimists should come true and civilization be destroyed by the next world war, concrete structures like stadiums would be likely to be the chief surviving buildings.

President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard University many years ago said that if our civilization crumbled away like the Egyptian and the Babylonian, two types of structure would remain to show that we were capable of large construction. He said these would be our subways and our skyscrapers. This was before the age of stadiums.

Perhaps some future class in archaeology, looking at a few concrete ruins of American culture, will ask, "What was the purpose of these large ovals, open to the weather?" And when told that they were designed for watching athletic contests, the reaction of some may be, "Could they not find anything better to do with their money and their materials?"

Unfortunately there will be no one there to explain the important place of football and baseball in American life.

The Kansas City Star suggests that "many columnists who have been writing nothing but dull politics for the last few months, may now pass on to being dull about something else."

There are expert lie-detectors on the market now, but probably nobody has yet surpassed Mother in that respect.

A Voice From the Country

Money Can't Cure China's Age-Old Ills

By LOUIS BROMFIELD

WITH the fall of Mukden and therefore, of Manchuria to the so-called "Communist" Chinese armies, the age-old, eternal question of what to do about China is again at the top of the news. The fact is that the same situation has been in the top of the news periodically since about 2,000 B. C., and the over-all situation has not changed much during all those centuries. It is not likely to change much during the next two or three centuries even in a shrunken atomic world. It is sometimes well to look into the past of a nation to find the answers to the future; and in the past of China we can find a good many answers to the present, if not the future.

BROMFIELD

China is a vast, teeming nation unable to feed itself adequately and has been the victim of internal political corruption since the very beginning of her history.

"Face," deeply-rooted traditions, systems of land inheritance, plus almost insoluble problems of economics and political forms and customs make China an inscrutable nation which is perhaps the most difficult in the world to understand by any standard of Western civilization.

The country is so vast and so complex that wave after wave of victorious invaders have been merely swallowed up and absorbed.

The invaders merely became Chinese in the end. Very likely this same process would have swallowed up even the Japanese if war had not shattered the process.

* * *

U. S. Policy On China?

THE problem of China threatens at times to become a very serious political issue in this country and certainly she plays a considerable role in our international "policies." To date there never has been any real policy toward China, but only a series of makeshift deals which produced little or no results save perhaps to annoy the Japanese during the recent war.

We, nevertheless, have managed to drop two or three billion dollars over a period of years to find that China is worse off than ever before. Part of this result came about because the aid offered was makeshift and too little, but the greater part was dissipated and lost through the corruption and the confusion which is China.

By now there seems to be little use in pouring more and more millions down the proverbial rat hole, and it becomes clear that if we are to continue wasting taxpayers' money in such vast amounts there should be some sensible and concerted program.

To do the job well and thoroughly would take far more money than is being invested in Western Europe, and would require generations in time. Those who believe that China can be reformed, organized or put on any reasonable basis of operation within a short time, no matter how much money is poured out, are simply lost in a fog of delusion.

It is perfectly clear that the economy of the United States, already burdened by the European Recovery Program and various other projects scattered about the world, could not possibly meet the strain of any Chinese aid program which could be even moderately effective.

Moreover, if we decided upon any such program, to what individual or to what group could we turn in China to get cooperation? The answer, very plainly, is no group and no individual.

The corruption of the Chiang-Kai-shek government is no longer gossip or rumor. It is accepted fact. The only other political group is that of the so-called "Communists," with whom we cannot and do not dare to do business. There is absolutely no indication that as a group or as individuals they would be any less corrupt than Chiang's group.

* * *

Halfway Measures Ineffective.

THE problem seems to boil itself down to this. Halfway measures are expensive and an utter waste of money. Any really effective measures would have to be upon a scale so colossal that they would go far beyond even the immense resources of this nation to supply.

Soviet Russia, although providing superficial aid to the "Communists," has no means of controlling them and, in her own confused and precarious economy, cannot provide the means of doing so.

She is using the Chinese "Communists" as a nuisance; but at the drop of a hat the "Communists" can and doubtless will slip into the old familiar pattern of the "war lord government."

No nation ever has been able to swallow China and no nation ever has been able to digest the Balkans, which already are causing Russia violent dyspepsia. My own suggestion for policy would be to let Russia struggle with the Balkans and then give her China on a platter to bring on stomach ulcers.

In her own troubled and confused condition, nothing could do her more harm. All the nuisances she attempts to create can wear the rest of us down, and in that policy she already has been far too successful.

The idea that Russia can subdue or dominate or organize China to her advantage is merely preposterous. Even a powerful and rich nation with no trouble at home could not do the job short of two or three generations; and Russia is a very long way from being either powerful, rich, or in any way capable of handling the Balkans and China or indeed either of them separately.

Japan seems to be our logical outpost, infinitely less of a problem than China and infinitely more capable of being built into a real force.

Charles Carroll of Carrollton, Maryland, the last surviving signer of the Declaration of Independence, died on November 14, 1832.

It Says Here:

—By KEN WOODMAN

YOU'D think when a gal uses her week ends and her free evenings and even periods of convalescing from illness to write a book that she ought to be the first one to see it when it comes off the press. But it didn't work out that way for Jane Williams, Mansfield's newest novelist.

* * *

No indeed. Jane was receiving congratulatory calls from all parts of the country last week as friends told her how much they enjoyed the book and how well printed they thought it was. And all she could do was moan: "Thank you. I certainly wish I could see it!"

* * *

And when the first copy arrived in Mansfield, was Jane the first to see it? Certainly not. Husband Paul beat her to it by almost a day, since he is one of our co-workers here on the newspaper and got an early look at the review copy. Finally, a friend delivered a copy of Jane's own book to her to be autographed. "An autograph!" said Jane. "I'm so glad to see it. I'd write the whole multiplication table in it, if you asked."

Assignment: America

Thomas Is the Eleventh

By KENNETH L. DIXON

WASHINGTON — If ever one of the country's lawmakers had reason to buck the old cry of the dice-throwers, it would seem to be Congressman J. Parnell Thomas, the New Jersey Republican.

For Thomas, now under federal indictment, can well hope that it won't be a "seven come eleven" case.

The reason: Thomas is the eleventh congressman to be indicted on federal charges in something like half a century. Of the ten solons charged before him, six were convicted. The other four were cleared, by methods varying from straight acquittal to reversal by a higher court.

In short, should the congressman be convicted, he would be the seventh out of eleven of his kind to suffer that fate. And while such figures might be the delight of crap-shooters, they could hardly be expected to please the congressman—under the circumstances.

Thomas, of course — for the benefit of those who came in late —has been indicted on four specific federal charges involving what are known to the political clan as "kickbacks." One charge claims conspiracy to defraud the United States government. The other three concern allegations that he filed false claims against the government in connection with his congressional payroll.

Since, during the past session of Congress, Thomas has headed the House committee on un-American activities, his case is bound to get even more attention than it would have received under ordinary circumstances.

This is so since he employed the same device to avoid testimony before the grand jury which he criticized so much when used by individuals avoiding testimony before his own committee.

It's the old constitutional so-called "self - incriminating" clause which permits a man not to testify if he fears that he might incriminate himself.

Thomas, who had demanded the privilege to do so, suddenly chose not to testify. Whether he was right in so doing undoubtedly will be clarified in a manner not permitted the witnesses haled before his committee. But all that is beside the point at the moment.

Despite the ten previous indictments of congressmen since 1906. The Thomas case is the first in its particular category—involving the so-called salary "kickbacks." The others have ranged from charges involving the peddling of postmasterships to war profiteering.

In 1906, Senator Joseph Ralph Burton, a Missouri Republican, was charged with having accepted $2,500 from a St. Louis grain and securities company to use his influence in having a mail embargo removed—the embaro having resulted from alleged fraud accusations. He was convicted, fined the amount he was accused of receiving and sentenced to nine months in prison.

* * *

Seventh or Fifth, Which?

RUNNING down the line of the rest of the convictions:

Representative Harry E. Rowbottom, Indiana Republican, was convicted in 1931 of accepting $1,550 from three men on a promise of getting postmaster jobs for them. He served nine months.

In 1935, Congressman John H. Hoeppel, a California Democrat was convicted, fined and sentenced for attempting to profit through appointment of West Point candidates. Also that year, Congressman George Foulkes, a Michigan Democrat, drew a $1,000 fine and an 18-month sentence for conspiracy to assess postmasters for political contributions.

The case of Massachusetts Representative James M. Curley, Democrat, who was twice indicted, is well known. He wound up being sentenced to serve from six to 18 months and being fined $1,000 for using the mails to defraud. That was in 1943.

Even better known is the case of Congressman Andrew Jackson May, the Kentucky Democrat who last year was convicted in the famous war contract fraud case and sentenced to eight months to two years in prison.

Since the other four indicted congressmen were cleared, it would seem both gratuitous and unfair to list their names at this late date. They are, however, in the record.

In any case, Congressman Thomas is the eleventh (in some fifty years) to be indicted. He will either be the fifth to be cleared or the seventh to be convicted.

The latter, in crap-shooter's lingo, would be a case of "naturaling out!"

French 'Thank You' Train Being Loaded

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Just one year ago this week the Friendship Train traveled across the American continent gathering food for the then hungry people of Europe. Today, one year later, a similar train is traveling through France gathering gifts for the American people. The French train is called the "Thank You Train," and consists of 49 boxcars ("40 men 8 horses") —the kind American troops rode in during World War I.

PEARSON

These boxcars are being filled with gifts for the American people and one car will be left in each of the 48 states.

The 49th car will go to the District of Columbia for transmission to the territory of Hawaii, which contributed an average of eight cents apiece from every man, woman and child in Honolulu to the original Friendship Train.

The French Thank You Train is coming not from the government of France but from the French people. It is being organized by Commandant Guy de la Vasselais, who served as liaison officer on General Patton's staff and is an old friend of Americans. Several million French war veterans are contributing to make the Thank You Train a success.

The gifts in the 49 cars will not include food, luxuries or wine. Instead, they will be chosen from products which are typically French and will include several monuments, portraits, wood carvings, china, pottery, bells and native costumes.

While the French are leaving it to the individual Friendship Train committees in the United States as to how the gifts will be disposed, it has been suggested that some of them may be suitable for American museums, colleges and schools.

The American railroads, which were such an important factor in making the Friendship Train possible, have patriotically offered to carry the French train free through various parts of the United States.

Apologies to Pat Hurley.

ON OCTOBER 25, 1948, this column published an account of how ex-Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley received a decoration for "gallantry in action" on the morning of November 11, 1918, the day World War I ended.

Further information has now come to hand regarding this decoration, and we now wish to apologize to Mr. Hurley.

The information comes from Col. Wilbur Rogers, formerly of the 77th Field Artillery, Third Division. Col. Rogers is the officer who stopped Hurley en route to the front lines and told him the war was practically over and that he was not needed at the front. Hurley was a member of the judge advocate general's office—in other words, an Army lawyer whose duty was behind the lines.

Col. Rogers now points out that Hurley knew that the "cease fire" order had been called and circulated before he ever went up to the front in order to get his decoration for "gallantry in action."

Therefore, concludes Col. Rogers, Hurley actually got the medal for action after he knew the war was over.

Col. Rogers also reports that Hurley later applied for membership in the Third Division Association in Washington, because his medal came from the Third Division. However, Third Division headquarters refused to accept the ex-secretary of war for membership.

Our apologies to Mr. Hurley therefore for underestimating his gall in accepting a medal for "gallantry" after the war had virtually ended.

* * *

J. Parnell Thomas.

A FEW readers have chided this column for its original expose last August of how Chairman J. Parnell Thomas of the un-American activities committee received salary kickbacks from employes—an expose which has now led to Thomas's indictment.

Some readers apparently confuse salary kickbacks with nepotism. Both are to be deplored, but the latter is not illegal.

Nepotism is the employment of relatives. In fairness, it should be stated that some relatives, such as Arthur Vandenberg, jr., and Mrs. Glen Taylor, wife of the senator from Idaho, work long hours on the job.

On the other hand some relatives merely draw the salary, never come near the office, and let the rest of the staff do the work. This however, is not against the law.

But it is against the law to hire a clerk or stenographer and then require them to kick back part or all of their salary to the congressman. Clerks and stenographers are paid not by the congressmen but by the government. Therefore, kickbacks merely mean that the government — without its knowledge—is increasing the congressman's salary.

A congressman's salary is fixed by law. In fact, he himself votes to fix that salary and recently Congressman Thomas and others voted to give themselves a wage increase of $2,500 a year, plus $2,500 a year for expenses, making a total of $15,000.

The result of Congressman Thomas's kickback deals meant that he was paid considerably more than his legal salary. Thomas has a long record of kickbacks going back to 1940, plus two known instances when he kept soldiers out of combat and later collected $850 from their families.

The Merry-Go-Round makes no apologies for its expose of Congressman Thomas's activities.

The Nation Today

Wheels Start Turning

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON — Washington is like a train which has just pulled out of one big station and is racing on to the next.

The stop it just left was November 2, election day. The next big one is January 3, when the new Congress, the 81st, sits down to work.

A few days later President Truman will hand Congress his State of the Union message—his program for 1949—and his budget message.

Then on January 20—inauguration day—he will be sworn in as President. Then the show starts.

Meanwhile, a lot of wood is being thrown on the fire to keep the engine going.

This will explain what is happening now and what will happen:

Mr. Tuman is conferring at Key West, Fla., with some of his top aides on what he and his Democrats should do in 1949, and how to do it.

But here in Washington government departments began months ago to figure how much each of them will need next year to carry out its job.

All these estimates, after a lot of checking, are put together in a big book, big as a New York telephone directory, called the budget.

In his budget message, which goes to Congress together with the book, Mr. Truman will explain why he thinks Congress should vote the money called for by the budget estimates.

All this budget stuff will be taken over by the House appropriations committee which promptly divides itself into a number of sub-committees.

For months thereafter the heads and officials of the government departments and bureaus will have to parade before the committees.

They'll have to explain why their agencies need the money the budget says they need, and why the amounts shouldn't be cut down.

After months of such hearings the appropriations committee will write bills providing as much money as it thinks each department ought to get.

Along about late spring Congress will get around to voting on those bills.

* * *

Many Other Things.

But that's only a part of what will be happening up in the Capitol after the new Congress takes over January 3.

First of all, the Democrats—now that they have a majority in both Houses of Congress—will reorganize the various committees, such as those on labor, commerce, banking, and so on.

In the 80th Congress, the one going out of business this year, the Republicans had a majority, so on every committee the Republicans outnumbered the Democrats.

In the new Congress the Democrats will oust enough Republicans from each committee to make sure each has a majority of Democrats on it. And each committee will be run by a Democratic chairman.

It's these committees which will be the key to the Congress and to the success or failure of Mr. Truman's campaign promises.

Is the Taft-Hartley act to be wiped out and maybe a new labor law set up in its place?

You can be sure the committees on labor in the House and Senate will hold hearings on that.

Then, if a majority of the committee members approve, a bill will be drawn up to kill the pact or substitute another one.

This bill then goes up to the full Congress to be approved or killed by vote. And when it gets out on the floor for debate before the vote, changes may be made in the committee bill.

And if a committee wants to scuttle a Truman promise — even though Democrats have a majority—it can refuse to approve a bill which would, if voted into law by the full Congress, carry out the promise.

Congress generally follows the ideas or recommendations of its committees.

So you can sit back and wait. It will be months before you have a chance to see whether Mr. Truman's Democratic Congress is going to go along with him.

Dave Boone Says:

THOSE pictures of women pushing baggage-loaded trucks onto the ships alongside New York piers emphasize once again the unfair routine of calling a waterfront strike or any other without warning. You'd think any strikers would want to give the public a slight break.

* * *

But some folks seem to get joy out of making things extra tough for the innocent bystander these days. Even if 100 per cent right in their demands no strikers make friends being that tough.

* * *

The fellow who washed elephants because he always wanted to do something big had a minor ambition compared to Uncle Sam, if he takes on the job of saving China at this point.

* * *

President Truman showed up with a beard down at Key West a couple of days ago. We hope he ain't planning to do card tricks and general magic for the next four years!

Top Holiday Sales Seen By Business

Stores Ready For Biggest Christmas

NEW YORK — (AP) — Storekeepers expect this Christmas season to be the biggest ever—but for the first time since the war they'll be making a real bid for your business.

Last December retail sales reached a staggering total of $12,641,000,000 — the highest for any month on record.

This year merchants are confident December sales will be even better. Some forecasters set the gain at 10 to 15 per cent over a year ago, saying they expect sales to reach about $14,000,000,000.

Besides the high level of national income, retailers give these reasons for their optimism: Supplies of goods are better and more varied than they have been in years, there are more eye-catching special gift items, prices are higher but values are better, and there is a greater range of moderate-priced gifts.

Merchants are stressing the moderate price levels — for months consumers have been turning aside from high priced luxury goods. They realize that the day has gone when the consumer would buy a gift no matter what its price.

Competition is back in full force. Merchants have recognized that in their selection of goods. They also plan bigger Christmas promotions than in many years—and plan to start them earlier than usual this year.

CONSUMER CONSIDERED

Manufacturers, too, have been giving more thought to the consumer. They have set out to develop new, fresh ideas.

Toilet goods makers have come out with a wide variety of moderate priced cosmetic kits, toilet sets and novelties.

"There is a marked awareness of the value of Christmas gift packaging among cutlery and kitchen tool manufacturers," said Julien Elfenbein, editor of house furnishings review, a trade publication.

Towel manufactuers again are offering Christmas-packaged gift sets which disappeared during the war—and notion departments have everything from casual slippers to kitchen bowl covers in gift garb.

With lingerie a favorite gift item for women, one corset company is introducing in time for Christmas selling a new washable nylon velvet blouse-brassiere. A first-of-its-kind article, the company said, the garment can be worn as a blouse for daytime or evening.

"Practical gifts will cominate sales increases," said the international statistical bureau, private research firm, in a summary of the Christmas outlook.

That idea is borne out in a survey of consumers in 31 cities by sales management trade magazine.

The poll showed that women are asking for household goods and clothing as Christmas gifts, while men list wearing apparel as their first choice. Beyond that, women list jewelry as their third choice, and automobiles are second in line with men. After that men will take radio-television-phonograph sets.

When it comes to the children, toy manufacturers expect sales to reach a new high around $300,000,000,. And there again, there is stress on moderate priced items. Toy makers say the supply of good quality moderate priced toys is far greater than a year ago.

'I Remember When . . .'

Terman 'Plunged' With $85 to Buy Store

JOHN S. TERMAN . . . he started on $85 on Friday the 13th

John S. Terman, founder and director of the Terman Motors, got his business start on $85 on Friday the 13th.

Terman was just past 20 when he shook his native Richland county soil from his boots and decided to try his luck in Cleveland. That was in 1896.

"I saw an ad in the paper that there was a grocery for sale. Eighty-five dollars was all the money I had in the world, but I went ahead and bought the store.

"And, "Terman added with his usual cris humor, "I oened the place up on Friday, Oct. 13.

"I was married at the time and my wife cried and said we'd lose everything.

"Four years later, I sold out and came back to Mansfield with $1,100 in cash. I though I was the richest man in the world."

Terman had to work to expand that $85. He swears that he's worked enough hours in his lifetime to be "three times as old." He's just a little hesitant to admit he's 74.

RECALLS PRICES

He especially likes to remember the prices of the "good old days" at his Cleveland grocery and meat market.

"We sold round steaks at two pounds for 25 cents and pork chops for seven cents a pound. Coffee was 10 cents, butter from eight to nine cents a pound and eggs sold at eight cents a dozen.

"Of course, everything else was in accordance," Terman continued.

"I paid the meat cutter $7 a week (that was a high wage); the girls clerk got from $3 to $3.50 a week and we boarded the delivery boy. I guess the boy got about $2 a week.

Even at those wages, which seem ridiciously low today, the average worker or tradesman and his family were able to live very nicely. Terman recalls that a house rented for $4 or $5 in "those days." He paid $20 monthly rent for the grocery store room and his living quarters above.

"Every other morning I got up 2 a. m. and went to market. Then I had to be back at the store to open at 6 a. m. We stayed open until 10 every night and until noon on Sundays.

WORKED HARD

"Why I've worked enough in my life to be 174 years old!"

Even so, Terman maintains that "people were happier then than they are now with the simple things."

"Most everyone had enough to eat—and what more do you want from life?"

After returning to his native county at the turn of the century, Terman ran a meat business at West Fourth and Bowman streets for some years before starting a meat shop in Ashland.

In 1912 he sold out in Ashland and returned to Mansfield where in 1917 he started the Terman Motor agency. Son, John Terman, V. now is carrying on the business for his father who retired in 1939.

Figures and cost prices fascinate Terman just as much as that $85 deal he made in Cleveland. He recalls that the first car he sold went out of the garage for $750. In 1920 the same make sold for $2,000.

A widower, Terman resides at 375 West Third street.

Poles Get Teleseope

TORUN, Poland— (AP) —Polish scientists are using a famous Harvard observatory telescope sent as a gift from Harvard.

The instrument was specially rebuilt and equipped for research on star colors, temperatures and chemical compositions and is the chief instrument for the new observatory established near here at the birthplace of Copernicus, 16th century astronomical pioneer.

Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard university observatory, sent the eight-inch Draper telescope to Prof. S. Dziewulski, a leading Polish astrophysicist.

Have Second Child

GALION — Friends here have learned of the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sindlinger of Hopewell, N. J. The baby is the second child of the couple, and was born Nov. 10, in Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Sindlinger were former residents of Galion, and were associated with the Galion public schools.

Sea Bottom Ownership's Moot Point

COPENHAGEN —(AP)— Who owns the bottom of the sea

This question has been debated among experts on international law, but has now become more prominent than ever with the Belgium professors Piccard and Max Cossyns planning to descent 12,000 feet down through the ocean.

A world known Danish expert on international law, Dr. Juris Georg Cohn of the Danish foreign office, says the proble... now needs a solution since the United States, Argentine, Mexico, Chile and this year also Iceland have proclaimed themselves owners of the bottom of the sea from their beaches to where the mainland under the water suddenly slops down from about 600 feet under sea level to 3,000 feet or more.

It is now considered only a matter of time when minerals and coal may be found there. Russia for a long time has been pumping oil from the bottom of the Caspian Sea.

In 1930 the first international conversations on the problem were held. It proved impossible to reach an understanding because the participating nations held different views on the question how far the sea should be regarded territorial waters.

"It is difficult to state from existing rules of international law who can be placed as the owner of the bottom of the sea, but I can't see how anybody can argue against claims that a certain part of the seabottom extending from the coast belongs to the country on mainland," says Dr. Cohn.

Greece Makes Forest Plans

ATHENS—(AP)—The Economic Cooperation administration (ECA) and the Greek government have drawn up an $800,000 reforestation and mountain soil erosion control program to increase Greece's lumber supply. Almost 60 per cent of the total area of Greece is non-productive mountainous land. Less than 20 per cent of this is forested.

"In recent years destruction has been more rapid than growth," American agriculturists say. During the Occupation 25 per cent of good forests were destroyed. The new program calls for the the planting of trees on the Greek mainland and islands, maintenance of tree nurseries, and the construction of forest roads. In addition, small masonry and wicker dams will be built in the beds of steep torrents.

U. S. Merchant Fleet Developing Secret 'M-Day' Plan

Ships Will Be Ready If War Begins

Action Entails Major Problems

WASHINGTON, —AP)— A top secret "M-Day" plan is being developed for the U.S. merchant fleet.

In event of war the armed forces would need shipping and need it fast—on a scale unprecedented even in World War II. Key maritime men are frankly worried about the responsibility.

Any plan to get the merchant fleet up to combat efficiency faces more than a few problems. Solving them is a joint undertaking of the army, navy and maritime commission.

Details of the M-day project are strictly hush-hush, but this can be said:

1. America's fleet of 1,750 privately-operated merchant craft is above the prewar mark. The ships are modern and fast enough for at least some defense against submarines.

2. Congress has appropriated $174,000,000 to help commercial operators finance construction of new super-liners convertible to troop-cargo transports Part of this money is available to help build speedy tankers capable of hauling high-octane aviation fuel.

3 The American shipping industry, a prewar weakling, now is healthy and prosperous.

4. The U. S. merchant marine has a vast backlog of skilled operating personnel In fact thousands of trained men have left the sea for want of berths.

5. More than 3,250 vessels, most of which were built during World War II, are at anchor in strategically-located "reserve fleet" areas. Most of these could be pressed into service, although many are slow and cumbersome "liberty ships."

But the picture has its bleaker aspects.

The nation's shipbuilding industry is hardly a shadow of its wartime self, the maritime commission freely admits. On V-J day the commission had more than 80 yards in operation. Today the government has no shipyards in operation.

About a dozen private yards, however, have contracts for new passenger, cargo or tanker construction.

Without doubt, say the maritime experts, the problem of shipbuilding—and repair—facilities is the key to the matter of adequate shipping in case of war.

Regardless of condition, all ships in the reserve merchant fleet would have to spend some time in a shipyard before sailing into war-time service—if for nothing more than mounting weapons.

With an eye on this eventuality, the maritime commission has kept four government-owned yards on a stand-by basis. They are at Wilmington, N. C.; Alameda and Richmond, Calif.; and Vancouver, Wash.

Shipping interests believe a large part of the answer to the problem of keeping yards in operation, and key personnel working, lies in the plan to build new super-liners to augment the merchant fleet.

The maritime commission, under agreement with two shipping firms, recently authorized construction of five new passenger ships costing about $80,000,000 in all.

It has taken bids for a proposed superliner to cost an estimated $65,000,000. This ship, capable of carrying 2,000 passengers or 12,000 troops, would be the biggest ever built in this country. Vice Admiral William W. Smith, chairman of the maritime commission, says prospects of building it are "very good"

The U. S. government pays subsidies on new ship construction to offset the cost of building ships in this country in comparison with other countries. Many private firms said the 30 to 35 percent subsidies paid before the war were inadequate. They asked congress last session to make it a flat 50 percent. This was turned down.

But the maritime commission, in awarding contracts for the five new ships, agreed to pay as much as 45 percent, plus additional help for installing certain features like added speed, considered a defense measure.

The government set aside $84,000,000 in the year ending last July 1 for subsidy funds. For a while nobody wanted any part of this, so the offer had to be extended until Sept 30. It was only a month or so before the later deadline that the money was spoken for under the passenger ship program.

Steer Clear of That Old Medicine Chest!

Careless Dosing Dangerous, Says Doctor

NEW YORK — (AP) — You had better see your doctor when things go wrong rather than to take some old medicine in your medicine chest, or a drug prescribed for someone else, Dr. Austin Smith warns.

For old drugs and many remedies that people take on their own judgment without a doctor's advice have "caused more unnecessary grief and even illness than can ever be calculated," he warns in a new book, "The Drugs You Use." (Revere Publishing Company.)

Dr. Smith is director of the division of therapy and research of the American Medical Association, and secretary of its council on pharmacy and chemistry.

Drugs in your home medicine cabinet can be dynamite, he says. Sometimes old prscriptions change chemically, and can become harmful.

"Too often, people take drugs that the family doctor has prescribed earlier for someone else, for an entirely different sickness," he added in an interview. "The things they take may be actually harmful. or the self-dosing may prolong the illness or make it worse before they do call the doctor"

Americans in 1944 spent an estimated $500,000,000 on articles to stock their medicine cabinets, he writes. The figure is probably higher today.

He lists the seven most common forms of self-dosing as: drugs for treating colds, laxatives, vitamins, sleeping tablets, pain-relievers, anti-acids, and kidney medicines.

"If you catch a cold, leave it alone," he writes. "Rest and sleep will shorten its duration. Eat and drink whatever you like—a cold doesn't last long enough to be affected by special diets.

"Nose drops and inhalants, when used properly and under expert medical advice, can help relieve some of the suffering. But otherwise they may do more harm thon good

Some nose drops relieve the stuffy feeling of a head cold temporarily. The congestion results because more blood is being supplied to the infected tissues to fight infection. Some nose drops constrict the tiny blood vessels, cutting down the blood supply and hence relieve the stuffy feeling. Later the congestion may become worse. Over-use of the drops may cause damage, Dr. Smith explained.

Laxatives can actually cause constipation, he writes.

Also, he says, "the supposed harmful effects of constipation, as normally observed in most persons are unimportant. They are of no consequence when constipation is of brief duration and occurs only occasionally. Laxatives can not be expected to bring back that school-girl complexion, that youthful step, or relief from tiredness, business failure or temper tantrums"

As for vitamins, "only one-tenth of one per cent of the people who take them without medical advice get any good from them. Most people get enough vitamins in their food The additional amounts don't help them at all. It takes huge doses to overcome a real vitamin deficiency."

Trouble can come if people start taking big doses on the theory that "if a little is good, more is better."

A New Stage Star Is Born

All Broadway Talking About Maggie Phillips

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—(AP)—Margaret Phillips, who was trapped in the United States in 1939 by a war which made it impossible for her to get back home to Wales, has popped up on Broadway as the most discussed young actress in town.

She drew rave notices for her performance as the unkissed minister's daughter who slips from primness to promiscuity in Tennessee William's newest play, "Summer and Smoke."

"I'm closer to heaven than I ever expected to be and I like it," said Miss Phillips. "I got the part because I had played a southern girl in Lillian Hellman's 'Another Part of the Forest,' and Lillian remembered me.

"I walked into the office and there stood Margo Jones and Tennessee Williams, the producer and the playwright. They asked me to read. I was excited and tried to read with too much feeling and got all mixed up, and had to stop. Tennessee is very quiet and understanding, and he put me at ease by saying, 'That's all right. Now don't get excited. Just start again.' That's how it was."

Miss Phillips, whose friends call her Maggie, is a slim young woman with chestnut hair and eyes that without too much exaggeration may be called green. She is 24, five feet five, and weighs 110. To some she seems a little on the thin side, but she says stubbornly, "I'm not skinny, honest. I just have small bones."

"Summer and Smoke" is the story of a small town preacher's daughter who has loved from childhood the son of the doctor next door. Hemmed in by narrow custom, repressed by an insensitive father and a deranged mother, she grows into a frustrated and despairing young woman. When she finally agrees to have an affair with the doctor's son he is no longer interested and she goes off with the first traveling salesman she meets.

This is an exacting role requiring real ability, and the astonishment along Broadway was quite general when Miss Phillips was able to get away with it without the experience that is usually a prerequisite to such finished behavior.

"She's a freak, a born actress," said one showman.

FORMER MINISTER DIES

HEIDELBERG, Germany — (AP) — Dr. Julius Curtius, 71, former German foreign minister, died here Friday.

St. Nicholas Tales Revive In Anthology

NEW YORK — (AP) — The old St. Nicholas magazine, in whose pages an amazingly large number of the writers working today got a stuttering start, is no more, but for those who couldn't, and can't, do without it, there is an upcoming anthology.

Wrapped in cellophane, bound in gold and black, with a generous supply of illustrations sprinkled through nearly 550 pages, "The St. Nicholas Anthology" is edited by a famous historian, with the aid of his children. It will be published Monday by Random House, whose editor, Bennett Cerf, once won a silver badge from the St. Nicholas league.

The editor of the book is Henry Steele Commager; two of his children, Steele and Nell, rated every item considered for inclusion as "terrible," "neat" or "swell." May Lamberton Becker, who used to edit the magazine, provides an introduction.

The slowly growing list of recordings of complete operas is lengthened about three inches with Columbia's release of Saint-Saens' "Samson and Delilah," in two albums of 15 large records. Fittingly enough, since it's written and sung in French, it's a performance, with Louis Fouresties conducting, by the chorus and national orchestra of the French opera. Helene Bouvier is Delilah; Jose Luccioni is Samson; Charles Cambon as Abimelech and Paul Cabanel as the high priest not only sing competently but also enunciate with unusual clarity.

Pianist Florence Mercur will play the lead role in a musical short, "No Path to Glory," to be filmed beginning in December in New York and Hollywood.

MIST MADNESS—Wild, soul-harrowing conjurings of a suspected murderess roll up like the mist from the marshes in the mind of Corrine Schettler, who plays the stellar role of the mad Mrs. Smith in "Suspect," to be presented to the public Tuesday and Wednesday nights by the Mansfield Community Players. First production of the season, the play will be given each evening at 8:15 at John Simpson auditorium. In the photos above, Mrs. Schettler is shown (closeup at lower left) as the madness causes her mind to wander on her supposed deeds, past and future. Top left, she imagines herself threatening Janet, bride-elect of her beloved son, played by Miss Shirley Anson. Top right, she stands with raised axe above a prone body; and bottom right, the always incriminating finger pointing accusingly toward her. Believed to have murdered her father and stepmother with an axe in her childhood, Mrs. Smith is acquitted by a jury which fails to find sufficient evidence for conviction. Released to live with her conscience, she becomes a victim of her own imagination and narrowly escapes exposure to her son as the play progresses. Others in the tense drama, directed by H. H. Schettler, are: Ruhland Isaly, Richard Airhart, Jack Schettler, Fred Pearson, Mrs. Marian Byers and Mrs. Patricia Blahnik. Last chance for purchase of membership tickets for the entire season is being given to Mansfielders today and Monday at a special ticket booth set up in the Mansfield-Leland hotel lobby. Single admission tickets will be sold both at the booth and at the door the nights of production.—(N-J photos by George Petrovic)

Cavallaro Band Coming To Madison Next Friday

Carmen Cavallaro, known as the "poet of the piano," and his orchestra will present four performances at the Madison theater next Friday, Al Dennis, manager of the theater, announced yesterday.

Cavallaro and his orchestra will appear on the stage in person, and the film, "Return of the Whistler," will be shown on the screen.

The stage shows will be given at 2:30, 5, 7:30 and 10 p. m. The shows will be continuous and regular prices will be charged until 5 p. m.

Cavallaro has played in European cities, and before organizing his own orchestra he played with numerous "name bands," including Rudy Vallee's and Abe Lyman's.

Cavallaro's appearance here will be the first stage show at the Madison theater since Vaughan Monroe played here last spring.

Friday's show will mark the first time in several years that the theater has presented a film with a stage show.

Guns Stop Bear In Nick of Time

GRANK JUNCTION, Colo. — (AP)—Frank Bernard came back from a deer hunting trip with a tall bear story—and the bear to prove it. The bruin he shot weighed about 650 pounds and was seven feet long.

Bernard said the big animal was only 30 feet away when he fired his first shot, the bullet striking the bear in the nose. The bear charged, paying no attention to a second bullet drilling into its side. Another hunter then shot the bear in the foot, turning it to one side, and Bernard's third shot broke its leg, ending its enraged rush.

Claims Legs Give Stars Their Standing

By HOWARD C. HEYN

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Ask a veteran Hollywood still photographer—somebody like Bert Six—if he thinks a girl's face is her fortune.

You'll get a sour laugh.

"Almost every feminine star in pictures today," says Six, "can thank her legs for being where she is."

Six, for years, has been shooting glamor portraits of stars and equally glamorous leg art of starlets at Warner studios. He doesn't think a pretty face is a handicap, but that's about as far as he'll go.

"How else," he asks, "are you going to make people aware of a new face?"

Joan Crawford, Jane Wyman, Barbara Stanwyck, Greta Garbo, Alexis Smith—he ticks those off on his fingers. Even Bette Davis. All started out as unknowns, posing for leg art.

"Sure, it took something else to carry them to the top of their profession," he conceded, "but the legs helped in the beginning."

A recent example, said Six, is Dorothy Malone.

"She's a beautiful girl, and she has a lot of talent. Look at the role she has in 'One Sunday Afternoon' with Dennis Morgan, Don Defore and Janis Paige. The first year she was in Hollywood, most of her working days were spent posing for publicity pictures. And the spotlight was on the Malone legs."

Six thinks legs must be more than well-shaped. They've got to have personality, too.

"Of all those who have become great dramatic actresses, Dorothy's legs are the most like Joan Crawford's, in my opinion. I wouldn't be surprised to see her win an academy award some day."

Sleuths Solve Case Of Missing Blubber

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Unofficial sleuths of the property department at Twentieth Century-Fox studios have solved the case of the misssing whale blubber.

The blubber was ordered from a whaling outfit in Eureka, Calif., for use in "Down to the Sea in Ships." When, after a week, it hadn't arrived, the waybill was traced through the freight concern which brought the shipment down from northern California.

At the freight carrier's Los Angeles office it was finally learned that the blubber had been delivered to the studio's subsidiary lot in nearby Westwood. There the sleuths found it, stored carefully in the refrigerator of the studio cafe. The cooks thought it was steaks of some kind, but swore they hadn't cooked any of it.

Richard Widmark and Lionel Barrymore, who had stew for lunch there one day, aren't quite so sure.

Nag Carries Camera For Mountain Shots

HOLLYWOOD — (AP- —When Director George Sherman decided he wanted the camera to follow Yvonne De Carlo and Howard Duff down a mountain slope, cameraman Irving Glassberg devised a novel horseback mounting.

He "saddled" a four-foot platform over four horses, enabling the camera and its operator, Dick Towers, to follow the riders in filming a scene for "Calamity Jane and Sam Bass."

The result on the screen is a rocking effect creating the illusion that the moviegoer is riding behind the two stars.

Divide Soil Vote Dated In Crawford

Nov. 22 Election On Conservation

TIRO—Crawford county farm owners will have another chance to vote in an election soon. This time they will be able to vote in the special election for supervisors of the Divide Soil Conservation District.

The voting will take place on Monday, Nov. 22. Plans are being made by a special committee of the soil conservation organization consisting of J. E. Huggins, Bucyrus, George Ruth, Sandusky township and Harry Rexroth of Whetstone township.

The above committee recommended a slate of candidates and alternates for the three supervisorships. Those willing to serve are circulating or having petitions circulated for signers. Efforts to secure a list of the men recommended were unsuccessful. The supervisors serve without pay.

The directors elected will fill the places on the board of supervisors now held by H. I. Swalley and Harry Stevens of Galion and Ralph Worden of Sandusky township.

The voting will take place at eight special voting places in the county from 12 noon to 3 p.m. Nov. 22. All land owners of the county are eligible to vote.

Voting places will be located at the Swalley Motor Sales in Galion; the soil conservation office in the Post Office building at Bucyrus, the Chatfield, Mt. Zion and Holmes-Liberty, Whetstone, North Robinson and Tiro school buildings, and at Crestline.

The supervisors elected will serve with two other men whose terms are not up this year, J. E. Huggins and H. G. McMichael. The supervisors direct the work of the soil conservation district.

Rural Magazine To Carry Lucas Farm Family Photos

By VIRGINIA LEE
N-J State Correspondent

LUCAS—Meet the Jim Hardins, of near Lucas, who were selected last week as typical of Ohio farm families!

The Robert W. Orr advertising agency of New York named the good looking couple and their four attractive young children as Ohio's representatives in a series of typical families from each state and sent a New York photographer to their farm to take pictures for use in a national rural advertising program by an eastern firm. The series is currently appearing in the Progressive Farmer and Southern Ruralist, a magazine published in Birmingham, Ala., and circulated most extensively in southern and western states.

The eastern firms pictures will feature the family relaxing around a checker board and doing all sorts of chores that go with life on a farm. News-Journal readers met 36-year-old Jim, a navy veteran, his wife, Marcia (Tilly), 31. Jimmy, 9, Maryann, 8, Eddie, 6, and Bill, 3, in a feature story about their American saddle horses a few months ago. One of the pictures also will show them with a horse.

"Nobody could have been more surprised," Mrs. Hardin exclaimed as she recounted her reaction when the New York concern phoned to notify them of their selection and make an appointment for the photographer.

"It's a thrill to be lifted out of your old routine and then to be photographed with an expensive new type camera when you're doing such ordinary things as canning, scrubbing, stacking dishes or feeding pigs," Mrs Hardin said. One shot will show Mrs. Hardin and Maryann plucking one of their Angora rabbits that each produce a pound of fur a year.

Hardin, who quickly reminds you that breeding and training horses is his favorite job, also raises cows, hogs, sheep and chickens and all the hay and grain necessary to feed them. Rabbits, he explained, are the business of Mrs. Hardin and the children each of whom have their regular tasks in connection with the general farm work.

. . . THE JIM HARDINS

★ ★ ★

Besides doing all their own work on the 140-acre farm, the Hardins find time for active participation in the affairs of the Lucas Congregational church and Sunday School and the Monroe township Farm Bureau. They occasionally attend the Pandora club dances in Mansfield, but lack of "baby sitters" makes such occasions rare.

The children were intrigued by the cameraman who spent two days with them.

"He was awful nice," Maryann repeated, "He said he'd send us pictures and some money, too."

What will the Hardins do with their surprise "modeling money?"

"We'll give some of it to the church, use some of it to buy a little gift for the woman who entered us in the contest, and put the rest in our savings "kitty."

The Hardins are a thrifty, typical family.

Rail Workers' Families Moved

Galion Partycraft Shop Makes Decorative Figures

GALION — Crawford county Jong has been a live turkey producing area but a local resident, Mrs. Edward Newell, who operates the Partycraft Shop at 136 North Washington street, makes large paper turkeys.

These attractive, non-eatable varieties of turkeys, stand 26 inches in height and lack only the gobble. Made of paper and wire the turkeys are available in either black or white and brown varieties. Mrs. Newell expects many of her turkeys to fill the need for Thanksgiving day decorations.

Mrs. Newell makes the turkeys in smaller sizes suitable for various decorative purposes. One large turkey already is part of the decorative scheme in a local retail store window.

Making turkeys is only one of the many things Mrs. Newell produces at her party shop. She makes paper flowers, leaves and specializes in pieces for outstanding occasions.

Mrs. Newell made a patriotic centerpiece for the Armistice day banquet of the Galion Business and Professional Women's club. She has, in her shop, an attractive baby crib piece and makes storks for baby showers as well as bridal decorations for weddings.

Christmas is a busy season for decorations and the Newell shop has numerous orders for large Santa Claus figures.

Artist Exhibits Work In Rome

NEW WASHINGTON—Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Johnson received a letter from Peter Galieto, stationed at Camp Willard during the war and who had a number of friends in Crawford county, that he sails today for Italy. Galieto is an artist and expects to continue painting upon his return.

His work had won acclaim in Rome. The exhibition of his paintings at an art show in Rome that closed Nov. 1 attracted favorable comment. One of Italy's greatest present day painters, Salvatore Datixa, was among the show exhibitors. An Italian art magazine published one of Galieto's pictures.

Walter Phelps, of Sulphur Springs, was at Camp Willard with Galieto and has corresponded with him. Galieto made a painting for the Second National Bank in Bucyrus. The U. S. Veterans Administration sent an attache to Rome to view Galieto's pictures.

Red Leaders Ignore Pledges Made To U. S. 15 Years Ago

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Fifteen years ago this coming week the United States recognized the Soviet Union, and history entered a first date in the ledger of promises broken by the Russians.

Recognition was accorded Nov. 16, 1933.

It came after eight days of private conversations between President Roosevelt, who had initiated the project, and Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar for foreign affairs. Sixteen letters were exchanged. The agreement finally embraced five points.

Two of these were little more than formalities, guaranteeing consular protection and freedom of religious worship for Americans living in Russia. Two others dealt with mutual claims for debts outstanding since the end of World War I.

The fifth was supremely important.

It dealt with propaganda, agitation and activity directed toward the overthrow, by force, of the American government.

In these succeeding 15 years, it has become one of the most cynical and calculated perjuries in the whole story of international relations.

(Nothing on the anniversary of recognition has been received from Moscow. Litvinoff was replaced as foreign commissar by V. M. Molotov in 1939 and the title later was changed to foreign minister.

(The Soviet information bureau announced in Moscow last February that Molotov replaced Litvinoff "because it was necessary to have at such a responsible post a political leader with greater experience and enjoying greater popularity in the country than M M Litvinoff." Little is heard of Litvinoff nowadays.)

In one clause Litvinoff pledged as a "fixed policy" of his government:

"To refrain and all persons in government restrain service, and all organizations of the government, from any act, overt or covert, liable in any way whatsoever, to injure the tranquility, prosperity, order of security of the United States... ..... and in particular from an act tending to incite or encourage armed intervention or agitation or propaganda having as its aim the violation of the territorial integrity of the United States or the bringing about by force of a change in the political or social order of the United States."

LETTERS EXCHANGED

And so, on Nov. 16, President Roosevelt handed Litvinoff a letter in which he had written: "I trust that our nations may cooperate for their mutual benefit and for the preservation of the peace of the world."

Litvinoff replied in kind.

The newspaper headlines, seen in today's light, make almost tragic reading—"All U. S. -Russian issues end with recognition"..... "Pact seen as boom to peace".... "World hails accord."

On the surface this seemed to be so. The United States had broken relations with Russia in 1917, when the Bolshevists overthrew th government of the czars. Since that time the greatest capitalist nation and the great socialist state had been at loggerheads.

Meanwhile the American Communist party was fomenting strikes, agitating, undermining the armed forces and openly proclaiming—at a rally in New York—the imminence of the "American revolution."

But all that was to be ended. The United States and the Soviet Union had entered into full diplomatic partnership.

There were a few dissentes to the general jubilance.

In West Virginia Congressman Hatfield, a Republican, asserted that "in recognizing Russia, we are only recognizing a government that would destroy our religion but what remains of our deomcracy."

Rep. Fish, a New York Republican, called for legislation to empower the department of justice to "keep in contact with communist activities in the United States" and to permit deportation of alien communists.

In a different and drier vein, Senator Carter Glass remarked "We've gone so far beyond Russia that I'm amazed that Russia is willing to recognize us."

STATEMENTS DISREGARDED

Those were the days of the new deal, and so these statements probably lost weight, in the public mind, by their apparent connection with domestic politics.

Moreover, 1933 was a depression year and the eyes of America were focused on the problems at home.

Very few people seemed to notice the complete and baffling contradiction between Litvinoff's pledge, his statement of Russia's "fixed policy," and the activities of the comintern in Russia and of the Communist party in America.

These facts, too, seem now to have passed without notice:

On Nov. 6, ten days before recognition and the writing of the Russian pledge, the comintern called the communist faithful throughout the world to "work for the world revolution and to forge a unified front against world imperialism."

In the same week an Associated Press correspondent, reporting on censorship in Moscow, cabled that "nothing whatsoever may be said about recognition except just what the Moscow censor wants to be said."

And American communist leaders were traveling to and from Moscow—on orders from Moscow—to get large sums of money and advice from the comintern on the means of bringing revolution to this country.

Why was recognition granted against such a background?

The record indicates several reasons. The depression-bound nation needed foreign trade at that time. Doubtless, too, the anomly of refusing to recognize the existence of a government that had existed for 16 years influenced the White House.

Pravda, the official newspaper of the Communist party, as usual was forcibly blunt and unvarnished in its explanation:

"The biggest capitalist powers," it editorialized, "which not long ago tried to neglect the workers and peasants of this country, and moreover attempted to enforce the relations with bayonets, failed, and were compelled to establish normal relations with the Soviet Union."

"It is first our power, economic power and political power and military power, while our country is surrounded by capitalism those factors have great importance."

FORCE EMPHASIZED

In other words, while American leaders found a motif of "peace" in the action, the Russians were emphasizing force, bayonets and power. Their motif was continued struggle.

In short order the value of Litvinoff's pledge became apparent.

The seventh All-World Congress of the Communist International was held in Moscow in the summer of 1935. Representatives of the American Communist party attended.

They noted successes in gaining control of American labor unions. They listed the strikes that had been brought about. They reported on newspapers, pamphlets and the functioning of their propaganda machine in the United States.

A formal protest came from Washington Aug. 25. The note recalled the undertaking of the Soviet government to "refrain and restrain all persons in government service" from "agitation or propaganda" designed to overthrow the American government.

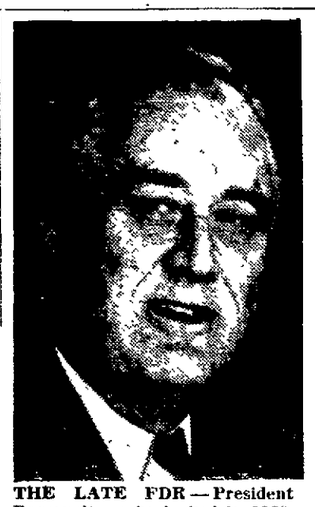
Moscow promptly rejected the protest on the ground that the Russian government was not responsible for the activities of the comintern. The Soviet note said this huge and well-organized body was an agency independent of the Soviet government.

It was a curious coincidence, therefore, that when American communist leaders went to Moscow they frequently conferred directly with Stalin, reported to him and received instructions from him. One of them, Ben Gitlow, relates in a recent book how he broke from the party as such because of a disagreement with Stalin on policy.

Fifteen years have passed since the day when "all issues" between the United States and the Soviet Union ended by recognition.

Since then other promises made at Tehran, Yalta and Potsdam and, more recently, those made in Moscow and disavowed in Berlin.

But Nov. 16, 1933, was the date of the first, the initial entry on the black record.



THE LATE FDR—President Roosevelt, as he looked in 1938.

JOSEPH STALIN Still at helm of the government for which he won recognition from the United States 15 years ago. Stalin is the man who bears the blame for broken promises to the U. S.

Litvinov, who reached an agreement with President Roosevelt, afterwards fell from Stalin's favor. He was replaced by Molotov in 1939 and little has been heard of him since that time. Molotov has since remained a figure of authority in Russia.

Wick Willies Get Blow-Out In Stove Pipe

WASHINGTON—So you know a wick willy who had a blow-out in his stove pipe?

If you know a jet plane pilot the chances are you know one whose engine quit while in flight. That is what the question is about, using some of the language developing in the Air Force.

The "airplane driver" of World War II is now a "fire-can jockey," "flame flyer," "wick willy," "pipe pilot."

The crate he manages is a "blow torch," "flame thrower," "squirt," "blast furnace" or "stope pipe." And the engine "blows-out" instead of "conking out."

The inspector now "trims the wick," "tends the burner," "checks the pipe," and if he finds the engine doing okay, it's at a "steady boil" or "cooking." He starts it by "building a fire" or "sparking up."

And the "grease monkey" is now a "je monkey" or "kerosene tender."

Large Corn Crop

COLUMBUS, — (AP) — Ohio farmers grew 212,106,000 bushels of corn this season, the Ohio cooperative crop reporting service said yesterday. It estimated the figure is 53 per cent larger than 1947's small crop and 30 per cent above the 1937-46 ten-year average.

Atom Poison Acts Slowly

OAK RIDGE, Tenn.—(AP)—Proof that the harm done to heredity by radioactivity can lie dormant many generations, and then act like poison, has been found here in the Biology Division of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory. This happened in paramecia, slipper-shaped, single-cell creatures that live in fresh water ponds. Paramecia differ from men by reproducing for 20 generations or more without mating.

In this mateless period, a paramecium simply divides into two to reproduce. After a score or more such generations, the slipper-shaped animals pair off and mate. X-rays were given to the paramecia during the mateless periods. These rays have the same effects as those of radioactive atoms. All during the no-mating generations, nothing happened.

After mating it was different. The paramecia in the succeeding generations were less vigorous. This loss of vigor was permanent. It appeared even though only one paramecium among the ancestors had been given only one shot of X-rays.

This delayed poisoning is like the harm expected in human beings, never yet found though known in certain animals and plants. In human beings the theory is that radioactive damage to heredity will not show up until after mating, and probably not until after many generations.

GOLDFISH STARTS FIRE

BRIDLINGTON, England—(AP) It looked like curtains for Sammy the goldfish. The hot sun shining through his glass bowl at Miss M. King's house set the window drapes afire. Pretty soon the whole room was blazing. But Sammy wasn't broiled. Firenem rescues him and saved the house. He's as perky as ever now.

Aged Recluse Dies In Flaming House

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Mrs. Sadie Garber, 75, who lived alone, was found burned to death Saturday in the charred ruins of her one-story frame home in the Blue Ash section of Hamilton county. Firemen said she apparently used kerosene to kindle a coal stove.

Foresters Now Setting Fires Instead of 'Dousing' Them

PORTLAND, ORE., —(AP)— Foresters who spent six spring and summer months guarding against smoke and fire in the Pacific northwest timber land are now out setting fires.

Signs that read "closed area" and "no smoking" are torn down. Sportsmen who were shunted away are now welcome to camp. Loggers can relax and smoke.

Early winter rains have pelted the 26,000,000 acres of forest land lying west of the Cascade mountains in Washington and Oregon. Moisture laden winds blowing in from the Pacific have dampened the threat of fire.

The fires that state and federal foresters are diligently setting ablaze are part of modern forest management. The rangers are cleaning house in the wake of unfidy lumberjacks, burning the residue of tree tops, limbs and brush that remain after a forest has been logged of its valuable fir, cedar and hemlock trunks.

The fires are consuming what lumbermen and foresters call "slashings." If left on the floor of the valleys and hillsides until next summer, they would be powder-kegs on a hot July or August afternoon.

There are special ways to build these housecleaning fires. Foresters organize their manpower and equipment and map the fire line carefully.

The topography of the sector is important. A south slope usually burns furiously but a level tract may only moolder. A nearby creek means pumpers can be used, but a 'dry site' will require tank trucks. A few days without rain means the slash cover is too dry, endangering surrounding green timber.

If the burning is delayed into the rainy winter too long, however, nothing will burn.

Each fire is different. A big one will create drafts at the center, drawing air currents from the edges and keep the flame together. A deep ravine area is frequently burned from the ridges, leaving the flame to slowly eat toward the floor of the chasm. The greatest danger is a shift or sudden rise of wind.

These burned over sectors have a double purpose. They eliminate hazards to nearby green timber not ready to be cut. They also establish beds for a new crop of trees sown by the wind-blown seeds from scattered groves left standing by the loggers for natural reforestration..

Fund Needs Slow India's Liquor Ban

Party Hopes For Total Prohibition

NEW DELHI, —(AP)— Inflati and the need for revenue are holding up realization of a favorite dream of the Congress party—total prohibition throughout India.

The central government which is run by the party, has agreed with a grou of economists that provinces should "go slow" on inauguration of prohibition.

The economists say the availability of liquor drains off some of the rupees which might otherwise be thrown into the battle for other consumer goods

Prohibition also would mean the loss of large amounts of liquor taxes to each province, and this might bring provincial requests for government loans The central government itself would lose approximately 25,000,000 rupees which come in each year from duty on imported liquor.

Not all the provinces have listened to the central government's recommendation to go slow. Madras and East Punjab inaugurated total rohicition Oct. 2—birth date of Mahatma Gandhi.

Other provinces have partial prohibition liquor cannot be purchased on certain days of the the very hot days when you'd like a cold bottle of beer.

Oddly, the Indian army is wet. The troops are issued daily rations of rum This sometimes disturbs civilians such as the Bombay provincial official who complained about it to a brigadier. The brigadier was sympathetic

"I'm helping prohibition" he told the official "I'm doing my best to drink the country dry'

Indians Using New Methods

TAOS, N. M —(AP)— Tribal leaders are taking steps to improve breeds of livestock at Taos Indian pueblo in Northern New Mexico. The campaign is designed to protect and preserve the limited, but fertile, lands alloted to the pueblo

Latest move was the importation, on loan, of an Army remount stallion to improve the breed of Taos horses Concerrent with the stallion's arrival, pueblo council reduced to five the number of horses any family might possess and feed on communal ranges.

Scientific surveys have determined that the carrying capacity of the pueblo's 81 079 acres is 901 animals, including both cattle and horses. Recently, there were 1400 being fed. A reduction program is in progress Getting some of the familes to dispose of their horses proved quite a problem Tradition dating to when the horse was the only means of transportation made many tribal elders reluctant to reduce their hrds.

HAMBURG, GERMANY—(AP)—About two million women in the British zone of Germany have no hope of getting married.

In an official public opinion poll by the British military government, one third of the people questioned said they would not disapprove if these women had affairs outside wedlock.

Invitation Gave Cue For Immortal Talk

Gettysburg Address Studied

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY
(AP Newsfeatures Writer)

CHICAGO—Abraham Lincoln may have taken a cue for his Gettysburg Address from a man named David Wills.

Joseph L. Eisendrath jr., secretary of the Civil War Round Table of Chicag, says some of Wills' ideas were adopted by Lincoln.

He offers evidence to support his views in a study completed just before the 85th anniversary of the famous speech of Nov. 19, 1863.

Wills was head of a commission in charge of the dedication of the soldiers' cemetery on the Gettysburg battlefield. He wrote an invitation to Lincoln.

REFERRED TO LETTER

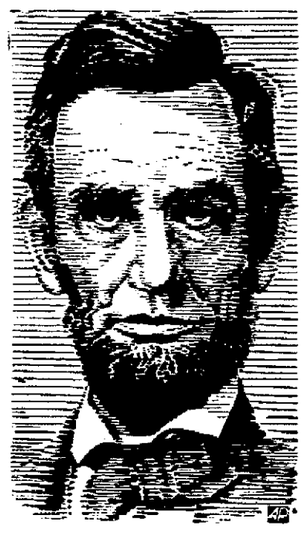
War Round Table of Chicago, says some of Wills' letter as he prepared his talk," Eisendrath says.

He finds a "striking similarity" in certain passages.

"Certainly," he concludes, "it seems that the President made a very noteworthy attempt to follow out Wills' suggestions."

Wills asked Lincoln to make "a few remarks." Lincoln spoke for only two minutes.

"The grounds will be consecrated," Wills wrote.



Scholar Reveals New Facts

Lincoln took it up from there and said: "But, in a larger sense, we cannot consecrate—we cannot hallow—this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it, far above our poor power to add or detract."

Wills wrote that Lincoln's presence would "kindle anew . . . a confidence that they who sleep in death on the battlefield are not forgotten."

"The world," Lincoln said, "can never forget what they did here. . . . We here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain."

BECAME A CLASSIC

The address became a classic.

But, Eisendrath says, Wills and his associates came close to missing the historic bus.

In September they asked Edward Everett to deliver the oration. Lincoln's speaking role was the result of an afterthought.

"Apparently the idea of asking Mr. Lincoln to speak did not occur to the committee until some time later," Eisendrath says. "His invitation to be a speaker was not put in the mails until Nov. 2—only 17 days before the event."

Fake Parole Racket Hit

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohionans still are paying out cash to under-the-counter characters who promise paroles for imprisoned relatives, the state welfare department says.

But, despite what the parole phonies may argue, the only way of getting a parole is earning one through the state pardon and parole commission.

"Money can't buy one," said State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood.

"Anyone who pays out money for a parole should have his head examinated."

Yet, the shake-down racket continues to spring up. Usually law-abiding citizens, approached by a line of promises, may jump at the chance to donate money for ostensible bribery without a blush.

Less than six months ago, this case flowered:

A parolee from London prison farm contacted the sister of a man serving murder time.

"For $1,000 I can get your brother a parole," this parolee told the sister, who lives in one of the better sections of her home city.

The sister, apparently without questioning the man further, produces $500 and convinced a brother and his wife from another Ohio city that they, too, should give $500 for such a purpose.

The enterprising parolee even signed receipts for the money. But, as the days went by, the receipts looked less and less promising. Finally, the family set a deadline for delivery of the spurious parole. The deadline came and passed. Still no sign of the parole.

Family members checked the welfare department and parole board, at last. So convinced were they of their parole it was difficult to prove the parolee had no official standing. They wanted their money back or a parole for their brother — and they thought the state should pony up one or the other.

Parole board investigators collared the parolee for violation of his freedom. The family, however, never got its money back. The parolee said his girl friend ran off with the $1,000.

Many interesting angles pop up in the parole investigation racket. A recent case uncovered the fact that a musical organization—the pride of one Ohio prison — was using its trips outside the prison boundaries to line up parole placements, many of them fraudulent.

Swiss Expect Tourist Slump

GENEVA —(AP)— The Swiss travel experts are not very happy about the prospects for the winter tourist season in Switzerland. At a recent meeting of agents of the Swiss Tourist Agency from all parts of the world, it was generally agreed that a great many travelers, for one reason or another, are going to stay away from Switzerland this winter.

This is no reflection on the fun and facilities available. The difficult international situation is one reason.

Another, Swiss experts in the United States reported, is the failure of Switzerland to advertise enough. They said the prospective American guests were subjected to a "drumfire" of British and French tourist propaganda, which had been quite successful.

Pine Whispers Beckon to Ashland College

By ANN SCHOENMAN

The whispering pines have beckoned the News-Journal reporter and photographer to the campus of Ashland College for this week. This Brethren college steps up on the pedestal for our next stop.

A little known fact about this school is that it was at one time a university. The original charter was granted for a university, but later the name was changed from Ashland University to Ashland College, a title more descriptive of its work.

When you enter Founder's Hall, an eagle can be seen standing at the bottom of the steps. This is Louise. She guards over the academic and social activities which center around Founder's Hall.

Before an exam the students go to Louise and drop a penny in her beak as a good luck omen.

Louise was at one time located in Wooster but suddenly one morning she was found in her present position. The students rallied and raised money to pay for Louise and to reinstate the boys who 'borrowed' the eagle.

In the fall of 1944 several students decided that Louise was quite lonely, so in the small hours one morning Louie made his appearance on the "Hilltop."

Since that morning, Louie has been casting his eagle-eye on the athletic activities of the school.

The name "Blarney Stone" came about when boys would take their girls to this stone and while sitting there whisper his favorite line to the girl.

Reta Young, last year's homecoming queen, is shown on the campus with Richard Rosen. Miss Young is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Young, 40 North Linden road. She is a junior at the college. Mr. Rosen, a senior, is the son of Mrs. Josephine H. Rosen, 265 South Diamond street.

Standing at the now silver Blarney stone is Thomas E. Schacher, senior, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Schacher, 1583 Park avenue west, Miss Pat Herr, a sophomore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Herr, 799 Maple street, Jinny White, senior, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray M. White, 138 Columbia avenue, and Ed Nalezinek, who resides with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Nalezinek, and wife at 290 Eighth avenue.

Between classes Joe Radojcsics, a sophomore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Radojcsics, 412 McElroy road, Joy Sauder, a sophomore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Sauder, R. D. 2, Lois Schnitzer, a junior, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis S. Schnitzer, 344 Park avenue west, and Walt Keeler, a junior, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Keeler, 121 Washington avenue, were caught following one of the brick paths on the campus.

Attempting to repair their "7 O'clock Special" are Jim Logan, a sophomore, son of Mrs. Theresa Bishop, Route 26, Bob Frere, a sophomore, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Frere, 194 Taylor road, R. B. Neuman, sophomore, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Neuman, 213 Vennum avenue, Conrad Schuster, a sophomore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schuster, 165 Arthur avenue, and Charles Lewis, a sophomore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Lewis, 358 Ohio street.

Shooting the breeze between classes on the front steps re Janet Rose, a sophomore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne A. Rose, 15 Martha avenue, Jack Dearman, a sophomore, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Dearman, 169 Chilton avenue, Violet Chokreff, a junior, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Chokreff, R. D. 1, Alex Demyan, a sophomore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Demyan, 287 Grace street, and Andy Knapp, a sophomore, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Knapp, 110 Marion avenue.

Mansfield Nurses Observe 75th Jubilee Of Nursing In the United States

By MARIAN WEST

IT MIGHT have been "Jane Doe, R.N."

You may be thinking that in regard to yourself as you peck away at your typewriter—but remember millions of women, throughout the world, have the same thwarted ambition

When you bandaged your doll or nursed your kitten's wound, you eagerly looked forward to the time you could perform the same operation on human beings And so, countless women today have fulfilled those aspirations, and are now gainfully employed in the profession

But nursing, as a profession, is not as old as one might think. This Tuesday, Nov 16th, commemorates its diamond jubilee, honoring Miss Linda Richards, whose graduation 75 years ago marked the initial step in the development of nursing in this country. Miss Richards was graduated from Boston's New England Hospital for Women and Children

Here in Mansfield, this year marks the 25th anniversary of the first class of the Mansfield Nurses' Training School, which was organized October 1 1919 Their graduation took place in 1924

Several members of this class are still practicing nursing here Miss Gayle Rife, who resides at the nurses' home, is a member of the Mansfield General hospital staff, Mrs Paul Young, 118 Arthur avenue, is engaged in private duty, Miss Ann Hall, of Mt Gilead, is employed at the dispensary of a local manufacturing plant and Mrs H C Doolittle, 405 Chevy Chase road, although not practicing is an active member of several nursing organizations.

Sixty-four students are presently enrolled in the training school. And the hospital boasts a staff of 60 graduate nurses, including the faculty of the school. Of the class of 20 nurses who were graduated October 1, 17 are still at the hospital.

Nursing need not be a general line of chores pertaining to the care of the sick The training period forms a fine basis for further specialization. Two obstetrical nurses and one operating room specialist at the Mansfield General hospital exemplify two of the fields into which greater training can lead

The Mansfield Nurses' Training School originally was affiliated with the Cincinnati General hospital. Now it is affiliated for pediatrics and contagious diseases with the Cleveland City hospital Starting next September, the school will also be affiliated for psychiatry

Miss Carrie Beal, director of nursing service at the hospital, received her training here. She came as assistant directress in September, 1946 When asked what she thought of nursing as a profession, she answered with the typical nurse's response, "I wouldn't be in it if I didn't enjoy it."

The nurses are provided with spacious living quarters, comfortably arranged and conveniently located across from the hospital. A large fireplace, several couches, easy chairs, occasional chairs, and an upright piano, all add to the attractive composition of the living room.

But hospitals do not house all the nurses of the nation, according to Mrs. Ann Thomas, supervisor of the Mansfield Visiting Nurse association, 15½ East Third street. Public health is another phase in the extensive field of nursing.

Twenty-five years ago private funds subsidized the task of visiting the homes of the incapacitated here. Today, the Red Feather and professional fees maintain this office which was established last September.

Approximately 50 years ago Jane Adams, of Hull House, pioneered in nursing in the home. Formerly all duty was restricted to hospitals and emergency measures

Today, according to statistics, one public health nurse should be alloted to a population of 5,000. The Mansfield office is staffed with three nurses, including the supervisor.

"In this community," Mrs. Thomas said, "we are definitely of more benefit to the older people."

Concerning who utilizes this service, Mrs. Thomas said, "Don t for a moment think we are instrumental only in assisting the poor. Our calls extend from Woodland to the poor sections, and with almost equal frequency"

A few of the cases which the public health nurse handles in a day's work include, follow-up surgery, care of new babies, pneumonia, cancer and fractures Elderly indigent patients, however, require the largest part of their service

Canton Lady Loses 36 Lbs. Says Rennel Is Fine

Mrs M Elder, 1419 5th St NE, Canton Ohio writes us, "I am 38 years of age and when I started taking Rennel Concentrate I weighed 174 lbs Now I weigh 138 and my dress size has changed from 20½ to 16 I like Rennel for reducing for it does not upset my stomach as other preparations have."

Hundreds of others have obtained similar relief from the social and physical discomfort of being overweight. Rennel is the original grapefruit juice recipe for taking off ugly fat. It's simple Just go to your druggist and ask for 4 ounces of liquid Rennel Pour the contents into a pint bottle—add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Then take just two tablespoonfuls a day. That's all there is to it If the very first bottle doesn't show you the simple, easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender, more graceful curves—if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't just seem to disappear almost like magic from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles, just return the empty bottle to the manufacturer for your money back. You need never know a hungry moment while taking Rennel—no starvation diet—no painful diet list to buy—no vitamins to fortify you against weakness while going hungry, for you WON'T be hungry. Don't be switched to another product. Insist on and obtain genuine Rennel.

Kline Family Celebrates Anniversaries

By MARIAN WEST

THREE members of the Kline family, one an octogenarian and two rapidly approaching his class, were recently feted at a birthday and anniversary celebration at Johns park.

Twenty-eight members of the Kline clan gathered for a dinner honoring Mrs. Karl P. Troll, the former Ida Kline, of 104 Helen avenue, who was 78, Nov. 8; W. E. "Ed" Kline, 479 Louise avenue, who was 76, Sept. 14, and Harrison B. Kline, 161 Buckingham street, who celebrated his 80th birthday Nov. 10. The dinner also marked the 54th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Kline, who were married Nov. 7, 1867. Mrs. Kline is the former Maggie M. Powell.

The three children of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kline, Mrs. Troll and Harrison Kline were born on a farm 12 miles north of Mansfield, between Bunker Hill and Shelby. W. E. Kline was born in Franklin township near Amoy, formerly known as Silver Corners. They descend from pioneers from Pennsylvania, who migrated and built their log cabins in this vicinity.

When asked how it felt to have achieved this age, Mrs. Troll said, "The thing that gratifies me most is when people look at me in an amazed manner and say, 'Why Mrs. Troll, you're not that old are you?' I guess it's just my feminine vanity," she added.

Harrison Kline said, as he rose from the couch, "I use to wonder, as a boy, why my grandfather held his sides whenever he got up, now I know—it's age."

"Ed" Kline's only comment on the passing years was, "I just don't know where they went. Especially the last 25."

If it's your ambition to live to reach the ripe old age of these two brothers and one sister, the concensus was that it's just a case of living right. Which lends itself to your own interpretation.

H. B. KLINE, W. E. KLINE AND MRS. K. P. TROLL

Their father lived to be 81, while their mother died at the early age of 69. Grandparents on both sides, however, all lived to be 84 or more.

Mrs. Troll is a past matron of the Order of the Eastern Star and a charter member of the White Shrine. She is also a member of the First English Lutheran church and Sunday School. She has two children, Earle K. Troll and Mrs. Charles T. Anglin, both of Mansfield, six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

W. E. Kline was formerly a butcher. He was proprietor of Kline's Meat Market, 271 Harker street, from 1916 to 1925. Through the passing years he has noticed quite a change in the butcher business, especially in price.

"The other day," he said, "I noticed a woman pay $1.65 for three pounds of chuckroast. When I was a butcher the same thing sold for $.35," he added.

He is a member of the Grace Gospel church and Sunday school, and has three daughters, Mrs. Carl S. Becker and Mrs. David O. Karl, both of Mansfield, and Miss Mabel Kline, of Columbus. He also has six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Harrison B. Kline, a retired mail carrier, has supposedly walked three times around the world. As a youth, he taught school during the summer, and one of his pupils of whom he is proud was D. F. Fighter, secretary and treasurer of the Richland Trust company.

Mr. Kline has two sons, Raymond S., and Joseph H. and three grandchildren. He is disappointed at being the oldest of the trio and the only one without great-grandchildren. Since his grandson was recently married, however, he feels that now there are prospects.

AAUW Group Receives Bequest

A new fellowship has been added to those offered by the American Association of University Women through a bequest of $40,000 from the late Miss Mary Andersen of Madison, Wis., a former president of the Madison AAUW branch and of the Wisconsin State Division.

This is the largest single gift yet made to AAUW fellowships. It brings the association's million dollar fellowship fund to within one-tenth of its completion with contributions reaching a total of $953,250.

For 58 years the AAUW has carried on a fellowship program to help women scholars conduct projects in advanced research. The program started in 1890 with a single fellowship carrying a stipend of $500. For the coming academic year of 1949-50, the association offers 27 fellowships with stipends totalling $42,000. Endowment funds for most of these fellowships have been raised by AAUW branches. Last year the membership raised $103,358 for AAUW fellowships and international grants.

Since V-E Day, the Association of University Women has extended its fellowship program to provide grants which enable women from war-devastated countries to study in the United States. This year 55 women from 17 countries have received AAUW grants for study in American colleges and universities.

It has taken 13 years of spare time to make and collect (from the United States and foreign countries) the 25,000 hand painted and hand carved pieces. This colorful display is the work of talented hobbyist Ernie Palmquist, former band leader and entertainer.

Ernie's 30-tent Circus has everything from the Big Top complete with saw dust, to Side Shows with snake charmers, fat men and sword swallowers. Included are 5,000 animals, 300 circus wagons, 2,000 performers and 3,000 spectators. There is a band of 72 musicians with gold plated instruments. There are jaunty horses with real tails, trapeze artists and rope walkers poised for action, tiny wheels of chance that actually twirl, shooting galleries, candy floss booths, and even a little boy trying to sneak under one of the tents, with a policeman on his trail. The whole effect is like viewing a real circus from airplane heights

Mr. Palmquist will be present at the display every day during store hours, answering questions and pointing out interesting facts, telling the story behind his hobby.

Horoscope

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Monday, November 15

Monday's forecast is for the sudden precipitation of some unlooked-for factor or development which may have the power to swerve the wheels of progress off balance. An error of judgment, a false move, overestimating values, or an entirely unpredictable or unique situation may arise to upset cherished plans. The best hope for readjustment or ultimate success might be quite as sudden and dramatic a stroke of genius or innovation. As judgment seems to be emotional it may be well to reconstruct programs.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is, may bolster themselves for the unforeseen development of strange, irregular or sensational visitation, calling for most astute, audacious and clever manipulation. All sorts of situations or unique experiences may block cherished ideals and ideas, probably owing to mistakes of judgment, erratic impulses or some rash emotional urge. With serious analysis, a sagacious rearrangement of plans or a clever stroke of ingenuity it is possible to effectually avoid the "rocks."

A child born on this day while probably brilliant, progressive and ambitions, may also be prone to fligthy judgment.

Five Circles to Meet Thursday

Five circles of the Central Methodist church will convene this Thursday for their respective meetings. Mrs. Wayne Miller, 503 Forest avenue, will entertain Circle Two; Mrs. Perry Hilligoss, 258 Elmwood drive, will be hostess to Circle Three; Mrs. W. B. Wert, 387 Sherman place, Circle Four; Mrs. Paul Miller, 478 South Main street, Circle Five, and Mrs. Ethel Blaney, 173 Chilton avenue, Circle Six.

All but Circle Six will hold a dessert luncheon at 1 p. m. Circle Six will convene at 7:30 p. m.

MEET MONDAY

The Royal Regal Garden club will meet tomorrow for a 1 o'clock luncheon at the home of Mrs. Bert Campbell, 550 Cook road. Mrs. Arthur Beidelschies will serve as associate hostess.

Kum-a-Long Class Holds Social

The Kum-A-Long class of the First Luthern church held a social meet recently at the parish house. The hostesses for the "come as you are" party were Miss Beatrice McCune and Miss Rosine Dickson.

The next meeting will be held Nov. 24 at the home of Miss McCune, 109 Helen avenue. Miss Dickson will assist her. The group will meet at the parish house and attend Thanksgiving services together and then go to the hostess' home for games and refreshments. At that time new officers of the class will be installed. The installation committee includes Miss Marilyn Stoup, chairman, Miss Betty Neibel and Don Rettig.

This is the largest single gift yet made to AAUW fellowships. It brings the association's million dollar fellowship fund to within one-tenth of its completion with contributions reaching a total of $953,250.

For 58 years the AAUW has carried on a fellowship program to help women scholars conduct projects in advanced research. The program started in 1890 with a single fellowship carrying a stipend of $500. For the coming academic year of 1949-50, the association offers 27 fellowships with stipends totalling $42,000. Endowment funds for most of these fellowships have been raised by AAUW branches. Last year the membership raised $103,358 for AAUW fellowships and international grants.

Since V-E Day, the Association of University Women has extended its fellowship program to provide grants which enable women from war-devastated countries to study in the United States. This year 55 women from 17 countries have received AAUW grants for study in American colleges and universities.

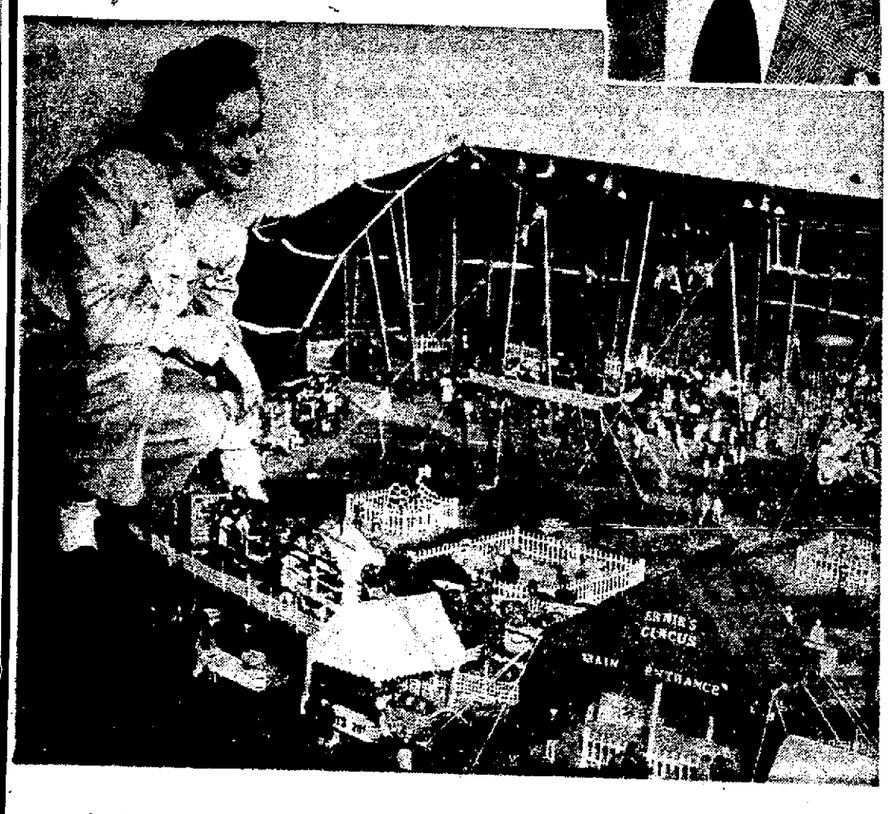
Greatest Little Show on Earth!

Miniature Replica of the Largest Circus and Exhibited In O'Neil's—Has Broken All Circus Attendance Records! Comprising 25,000 Pieces, Built to a Scale of One-half Inch to One Foot—By Owner Ernie Palmquist



Ernie's circus comes to O'Neil's, and has pitched its tents on the second floor. This miniature circus, scale ½ inch to the foot, was inspired by the Barnum and Bailey Circus. It has taken 13 years of spare time to make and collect (from the United States and foreign countries) the 25,000 hand painted and hand carved pieces. This colorful display is the work of talented hobbyist Ernie Palmquist, former band leader and entertainer.

Ernie's 30-tent Circus has everything from the Big Top complete with saw dust, to Side Shows with snake charmers, fat men and sword swallowers. Included are 5,000 animals, 300 circus wagons, 2,000 performers and 3,000 spectators. There is a band of 72 musicians with gold plated instruments. There are jaunty horses with real tails, trapeze artists and rope walkers poised for action, tiny wheels of chance that actually twirl, shooting galleries, candy floss booths, and even a little boy trying to sneak under one of the tents, with a policeman on his trail. The whole effect is like viewing a real circus from airplane heights.

Mr. Palmquist will be present at the display every day during store hours, answering questions and pointing out interesting facts, telling the story behind his hobby.

Real Estate Convention Opens Today

Nation's Realtors Meet In New York

Several thousand realtors from all parts of the country have gathered in New York City for the 41st annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, opening today and continuing through Nov. 20, in the Commodore Hotel. Hobart C. Brady, Wichita, president, will preside.

Prominent speakers such as James A. Farley, former Postmaster General, and William Craven-Ellis, well-known British home builder and a former member of Parliament, will address various sessions. Panel discussions will develop the latest market outlook in housing.

Policy of the organization on such vital issues as rent control, public housing, socialization of the industry, and war housing will be considered. New officers will be elected.

"Opportunities for Greater Service" is the convention theme which will be stressed throughout, with experts in the various specialized fields of real estate sharing their experience with the others in attendance.

The future in urban development will be previewed in a "Cities of Tomorrow" exhibit, sponsored by the Urban Land Institute and The Architectural Forum magazine.

The models and large photographs will show the work which will actually be done in cities during the next few years on the basis of pioneer projects which have already been accepted or are being put in place.

HOME OWNERS' QUESTION BOX

Q. How can a dull file be sharpened?

A. Soak it for 15 or 20 minutes in a diluted solution of sulphuric acid. Extremely dull files should be soaked longer.

Q. How should a home freezer be defrosted?

A. A home freezer is defrosted by scraping off the frost with a wooden scraper or a stiff brush, not by turning off the power.

Q. How can paint spots be removed from wire screens?

A. Apply paint remover with a brush, wait a few munutes and then wipe off the softened paint with a rag soaked in turpentine. After the screen has dried, apply a mixture of half spar varnish and half turpentine to prevent corrosion.

Q. The concrete floor in the basement of my home is always dusty. Why?

A. The reason might be that there is not enough cement in the concrete. Occasionally concrete which has been allowed to freeze will acquire a powdery surface similar to dust.

Urban Land Institute Urges Zoning of Industrial Areas

Potential business and industrial sites are suffering from inadequate zoning safeguards which allow the intrusion of residential developments, the Urban Land Institute warns in its latest Technical Bulletin just published.

Written by Seward H. Mott and Max S. Wehrly, director and assistant director, respectively, of ULI, the bulletin is entitled "The Prohibition of Residential Development in Industrial Districts." The ULI is a research organization in the field of city planning and urban development.

In almost all instances, according to the authors, "there has been a failure to recognize the undesirable intrusion of residential development into business and industrial districts." Operating on the present theory of designating potential industrial sites as "a residue or catch all," many city zoning ordinances are adding further encouragement to the decentralization of industry.

"The theory that residential uses can be allowed to occupy potential industrial areas until such time as needed, and that industry will then come in and acquire the land for industrial use, has proved to be largely erroneous," the bulletin states. "Residential uses in industrial areas are the first to become blighted."

Referring to the practice of permitting residential development in industrial districts, the bulletin points out that this policy may further accentuate the mixture of residential and industrial uses. "It was to prevent this very condition that zoning was first developed, Zoning was originally conceived to prevent the intrusion of 'objectionable' uses, such as business and industry, with residential areas."

Stressing the fact that industry is the life blood of a community in most instances, the article says many zoning laws state specifically that all uses which are otherwise lawful shall be permitted in an industrial district. This disregards several paramount factors which must be considered by industries expanding in present locations or seeking new ones. One prohibition is the cost of acquiring property which has been developed for residential uses. Another drawback is the pattern of utilities, such as sewerage and water, and the layout of public roads and streets in the area. Also, difficulties are often encountered in land acquisition, due to the multiplicity of ownerships and vested interests in homes.

Richland Grange Masters to Meet

A meeting of all grange masters and past masters of Richland county has been called for Monday at 8:15 p. m. in the Hazel Grove grange hall near Shelby. Thomas Sheppard, deputy master announced yesterday.

At that time, grange members will receive annual reports and discuss projects for the coming year.

Care Checks Fire Losses

With property valuations at an all-time peak, the destruction of a home by fire today represents a correspondingly high economic loss. This point is stressed by fire safety officials, who recommend that all possible precautions be taken to protect existing structures and eliminate hazards in new buildings.

This advice, it is pointed out, is good at any time. It is doubly important in early winter, when the most common home fire hazards are working overtime.

Half of the 260,000 residential fires reported last year were caused by unsafe heating equipment, faulty chimneys, defective electrical appliances and flying sparks and embers. Seasonable checkups on known hazards will reduce loss from these causes.

It also is good fire prevention practice to consult competent authorities in your community before building or remodeling. Only tested and approved heating equipment and electrical appliances should be used.

Games and Exercise Help Convert School Drudgery Into Fun

Physical Education Given to 'Younger Set'

By MARGUERITE MILLER

Two little "sneakers" patter across the hardwood floor. There's a big, toothless grin and then the breathless question:

"Teacher ...may we please play the game where Jimmy runs across the room and tries to catch us?"

That's a typical request from one of Mansfield's first grade physical education "students." And hearing those requests eight and nine periods every day are Mrs. Marily Walker of Rebecca Grubaugh school and Mrs. Mary Berry of Hedges school—to date, the city's only physical education instructors in the elementary grades.

Working under Coach Harry Mehock, physical education directbr of public schools, the two young women are pioneering the modern educational curriculum to be presented to all Mansfield youngsters with the $4,231,000 school rebuilding program.

The awakening to physcial education as a integral part of modern education has been generally slow across the country. Now, it's a rare occasion when a visitor to a city finds no gymnasium in the town's elementary schools.

PLAY NOT ENOUGH

Realizing that after-dinner play is not enough to train young muscles into healthy, useful bodies, Mansfield schools, too are slowly working into a physical ednot at the junior high level, but in the first grade, Mehock declared.

Just as a veteran tradesman realizes that an apprentice can not be expected to turn out a perfect piece of work, so does the teacher of today realize that sound bodies are not made by gym classes after the child reaches adolescence, explained the coach.

Child psychologists, he pointed out, preach that physical ability tends to offset the psychiatric disturbances of late adolescence. It becomes an avenue of release for pent up energies. It gives grace to the homely, an introduction to popularity for the backward.

The high school girl who is graceful on the dance floor has more chance of becoming one of the most popular girls in the school. The same is true of the boy who excels in sports. Through this medium he wins the respect and admiration of the school, which in many cases, work the youth into other activities.

Both Mrs. Walker and Mrs. Berry maintain that the physical education classes perform a twofold purpose: first, the 40-minute periods taken in the gymnasiums give the child a chance to "let off steam." Teachers in other subjects have noticed quieter behavior among pupils who return from the physical education classes.

AIDS COORDINATION

Secondly, the child is afforded exercises as well as play for muscle development. Very often the teachers find poorly coordinated children as advanced as the third grade.

For example: Mrs. Berry found a child in the third grade who had no control over a ball she was told to throw above her head. A boy in the fourth grade, told to bounce a ball along the floor while running, was unable to do it because of lack of earlier coordination training.

Mrs. Walker confines her first and second grade programs to the unorganized or low organized games.

The 85 first graders who go through the daily physical education routines start the class period, off with rhythm games, which are in actuality, only exercises pointing up muscle development and strength.

The "carry-over value" to higher grades is seen by Mrs. Berry as being one of the most important phases of elementary school physical education.

'STEAL THE BACON'—Hedges fourth graders Anthony Walker and Carol Goodman vie for the rubber ring in the center of the gym floor as they engage in the fast-moving game. Anthony, who is almost upon the prized ring, looks warily at Carol who is all set to tap him if he picks up the ring and heads back for his side. If Carol tags Anthony the point goes to her side.

'SQUIRREL IN A TREE'—Six-year-old Norman Wolfe waits eagerly for his chance to run to another "tree" while taking the part of the squirrel in the first-grade physical education game at Rebecca Grubaugh school. Surrounding him as the "tree" are left to right: Melinda Davis, Wendy Wiler and Roger Broach.

Photos Foretell Trend of Future

These pictures, taken in two Mansfield schools, depict scenes that will be reenacted in others when work is finished on improvements made possible by approval of the school bond issue.

Rebecca Grubaugh school and Hedges now have gymnasiums, which serve also as auditoriums.

City Begins Book Week

Grade Children Present Programs

Students of Mansfield elementary schools will present a series of special programs at the Mansfield public library this week as their part in the observance of National Book week which begins Monday, according to Miss Eva Leonard, children's librarian.

The programs will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at 7:30 p. m. They are open to the public and no admission will be charged.

Tuesday evening Hedges, Carpenter, St. Peter's, and West Fifth street schools will take part in the program.

The fifth graders of Hedges school will give a skit about books, Janice Swank of Carpenter school will act out a book report on "Alice in Wonderland." A Mother Goose play will be given by the first graders of St Peter's school The third and fourth graders of West Fifth street school will give the play, "Little Book People."

Bushnell, Country Day, Bowman, and Rebecca Grubaugh schools will present a play Wednesday night.

PRESENT PLAY

The fifth graders of Bushnell school will give a play, 'The Terrible Comics' An Indian dance will be given by the upper grade students of Country Day school Fourth graders of Bowman school will present a play which they have written on books they have read. The program will be completed by the fifth graders of Rebecca Grubaugh school They will ask the audience to play 'Who Am I?' Bringing to life book characters for the audience to identify.

The final program will be given Thursday night by students from Newman Brinkerhoff Woodland, and Prospect schools

Judith Hines, third grade student at Newman school, will give a book report. Third graders of Brinkerhoff school will present a play on the care of books. A scene from the play, "Necessary Nellie," will be given by fourth graders of Woodland school. A mixed group of students from the various grades at Prospect school will conclude the program Their part in the program has not been announced.

The theme for National Book Week is 'Books Tell the Story'

Posters and displays of new books will be exhibited at the library during the week.

A number of classes from the city schools plan to visit the library during National Book Week

'WATCH US STRETCH'—"Up, up, up", urges Mrs. Marilyn Walker, physical education teacher at Rebecca Grubaugh school, and her first grade students literally stand on tip-toe to oblige. To the accompaniment of a little song which goes on to stooping and swaying exercises, the little tots get their "warming up" exercises for the start of class.

QUICK-THINKING—Coordination of the mental and physical reflexes is demostrated here as a Hedges school fourth grader successfully dodges the ball thrown to the center of the ring. A game of skill, "dodge ball" is one of the first organized games given the elementary pupils this year by Mrs. Mary Berry, physical education instructor.

Irish Come From Behind for 12-7 Triumph

Rampaging Buckeyes Blast Illini, 34-7

Rockne's Win Mark Is Tied

By TED SMITS

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—(AP)—Two unheralded substitutes, William Gay and John Landry, brought Notre Dame from behind to defeat Northwestern 12 to 7 yesterday in a bruising battle of football titans.

Their heroic last quarter touchdown march came after Art Murakowski put Northwestern ahead 7-6 on a 90-yard run when he intercepted Frank Tripucka's pass. This was Notre Dame's 20th consecutive victory and it put Coach Frank Leahy's name in the records alongside that of the great Knute Rockne.

Leahy's team has now gone 26 games without defeat, counting the 1946 scoreless tie with Army, equalling the brilliant string Rockne spun with his last teams in 1929 and 1930.

91 YARD MARCH

Notre Dame scored first on a 91 yard march in the first period before the capacity crowd of 59,305, with John Panelli carrying it over from the two yard line. Until near the end of the third period it looked like this would be all that either team could do. But then, with Notre Dame on the march, Murakowski jumped high into the air to take Tripucka's pass and dart down the sidelines. Jim Farrar's conversion put Northwestern ahead, and it almost seemed that the year's biggest football upset was in the making.

But the 170-pound Gay and the 180-pound Landry came driving down the field, starting from Notre Dame's 37 yard line. Gay carried it over from the one-foot marker to keep Notre Dame's record untarnished.

LAST MEETING

In this, their last meeting for the present in a series that began in 1889, Northwestern set out to prove that it is a fit representative of the Western Conference in the Rose Bowl, and although defeated, Northwestern came out with high honors.

About Pep Stuff Help In Victory Over Big Blue 11

By Fred Tharp
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

ENTHUSIASM is a wonderful thing. . . . The tremendous fan interest unquestionably helped the Tygers to get "keyed" to the sky Friday night against Hamilton. . . . The players themselves were the first to admit that the spirited all-out backing by adults and students alike put them over the top. . . . Before the endless succession of pep rallies, bonfires, snake dances and impromptu parades last week, few persons expected Senior high school to drop Hamilton from its lofty perch. . . . But drop 'em the Tygers did, 27 to 20. . . . And this from a team which expected to roll up a giant score on the Tygers. . . . Hamilton wanted points aplenty to prove to Ohio's fooball followers that it was the greatest. . . . For proof of that we quote a letter from Bill Moeller, Hamilton sports editor, to Jack DeLong of the Canton Repository sports staff. . . . Dear Jack: If Hamilton beats the h—— out of Mansfield Friday night, Jack DeLong, Bud Volzer (Canton sports ed) and Chuck Mather (Massillon coach) are to blame." . . . It seems the whole town of Hamilton (that's where Mather coached last year) was in an uproar about a Canton interview with Mather which said that Canton McKinley, Massillon and Mansfield all had tougher football teams than Hamilton. . . . Now Hamilton can believe it. . . . One phase of the week's pep business that escaped the fans was a batch of letters and telegrams from former Tyger players and coaches. . . . Many of these were read to the players in the dressing room before the game. . . . So we thought we'd like to pass along portions of a few.

★ ★ ★

Men of Mansfield football team:

As you approach your game with Hamilton, I know just about what you are thinking.

In every emergency, the eyes of all of the people are on those in whom they have confidence. Mansfielders are looking to you men at this time to bring them victory in your game with Hamilton. You must go into this game expecting to win. That should be your goal. Aim high for something you want. No effort of yours will be good enough unless you can do better. Nothing is good enough if it is not your best. Remember, all of the world applauds the finisher. The finisher in any athletic contest is the one who has honestly trained and who houses sufficient courage to win. Like the woodpecker who owes his success to the fact he uses his head. He keeps pecking away until the job is finished.

So in the Hamilton game make it Good, Better, Best. Never let it rest until your Good is Better and your Better Best. Deliver the goods and bring home the bacon.

PETE HENRY,
Athletic Director, Washington and Jefferson.

★ ★ ★

Dear Gang:

I have been following your football record this year with more than usual interest. It's obvious to me that you fellows have that mysterious spark that turns in great performances on the football field. Remember this, no one can tell a good team that they're going to be beaten. No matter how tough the opposition is. You're a scrappy bunch of fellows, and you can play great football. I'll be pulling for you.

DAVE TEMPLETON,
Ohio State football captain.

★ ★ ★

Have always felt very close to you Tygers. Tonight, you must play for yourselves. You must prove to Ohioans that you do have it when the chips are down. Hamilton may have the celebrities, but a pretty famous gent named Rockne once said, "Give me eleven men who love to play the game and you can have your stars." Which are you?

PAUL DIETZEL,
Army plebe line coach.

★ ★ ★

Best of luck to you tonight.

BILL DOOLITTLE,
Grandview high school coach.

★ ★ ★

Play your best ball. Results will be satisfactory.

RUSS MURPHY,
North Carolina Asst. Coach.

★ ★ ★

It takes team spirit and determination to win. Hit them hard and hit them quick. We'll be pulling for you.

North Carolina players.
JOE ROMANO and DON HARTIG,

★ ★ ★

Beat Hamilton. The Detroit club will be watching.

JACK DUGGER,
Detroit Lions player.

★ ★ ★

Wishing you lots of luck in your game tonight. I know you can come through.

DAVE WENTZ,
Ohio U. player.

★ ★ ★

Tell the boys that this is the game to win. It is their chance to show someone the kind of a team they really have.

DAVE RICHARDS,
West Virginia player.

★ ★ ★

Only wish I could be on the sidelines as the Tygers go out against undefeated Hamilton. Your Tygers have proved they can swap gridiron tricks with the best teams in the nation. Let the boys know, in my book, they have the stuff to bring home a victory. Saturday as I broadcast the Notre Dame-Northwestern game, I hope to be doing so with a smile, knowing a fighting bunch of Tygers from Mansfield showed great courage in knocking Hamilton from the ranks of the undefeated.

JIMMY DUDLEY,
WJW Director of Sports.

49'ers Want Revenge On Browns

CLEVELAND — (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers have an additional incentive to wallop the champion Cleveland Browns in their important All America football conference battle here today.

A victory for the undefeated 49ers would give them the leadership in the conference's western division. That should be enough satisfaction, but there's a personal angle, too. The west coasters want to show up Cleveland's coach, Paul Brown.

When the teams met here last Nov. 16, the Browns pulled out all the stops and roared to a 37-to-14 triumph.

THE CONVINCER

Brown explained afterward that he wanted to make very sure of victory since it was the game that would clinch the western division title. He added:

"I wanted to convince that San Francisco team we could lick 'em, and I mean lick 'em good. They know it now and they'll remember it next year."

The Browns had just edged the 49ers by identical scores of 14 to 7 in two previous games.

The 49ers remember Brown's words.

The Browns also have plenty of incentive. A defeat would seriously handicap Cleveland in its bid for a third straight conference championship because the remaining schedule favors the 49ers.

A capacity crowd is expected to jam Cleveland's municipal stadium for the 2 p. m. kickoff.

Wolves Rock Indiana, 54-0 Before 84,000

ANN ARBOR, Mich. —(AP)— Unbeaten Michigan opened up a land and air attack here today that pulverized defeat-groggy Indiana, 54-0, the Hoosiers worst beating since Michigan rocked them 63-0 in 1925.

A chill-nipped crowd of 84,800 watched coach Ben Oosterbaan's Wolverines widen a slim 7-0 first period lead into their biggest victory margin in eight straight wins this season. It was Michigan's 22d successive triumph in three seasons.

George Taliaferro, the Hoosiers' slick triple-threater from Gary, Ind., provided a brief spark in the early action. But the maize and blue forces began to roll at the end of the first period and wound up with a flood of reserve talent pounding out five last half touchdowns.

BREAKS ICE

Michigan's spinning fullback, Tom Peterson, broke the scoring ice after slightly more than five minutes, of play, plunging over from the two-yard line. His defensive replacement, Dick Kempthorn, touched off the second period with a similar score. Then Chuck Ortmann, Michigan's passing ace, who completed 8 of 15 aerials for the fancy total of 123 yards, flipped a 13-yard touchdown pass to end Harry Allis for a 21-0 lead before half time.

Then came the deluge.

Ortmann ploughed into the Hoosier end zone from the two. Quarterback Pete Elliott hit end Dick Rifenburg, the Wolverines' top all-American candidate, with a five-yard scoring pass. Wally Teninga started the final period with a two-yard touchdown sweep around right end, substitute fullback Don Dufek made it from the one and another substitute, fullback Norm Jackson, plunged over from the one-foot line.

Allis was wide with one conversion attempt after booting 14 straight—and had another blocked by Indiana's fast-stepping end, Francis Carter.

After the first quarter, the visiting Hoosiers were never in the Allis was wide with one combined offensive total of 159 yards. Michigan hit in the air for 150 of their fancy total of 435 yards.

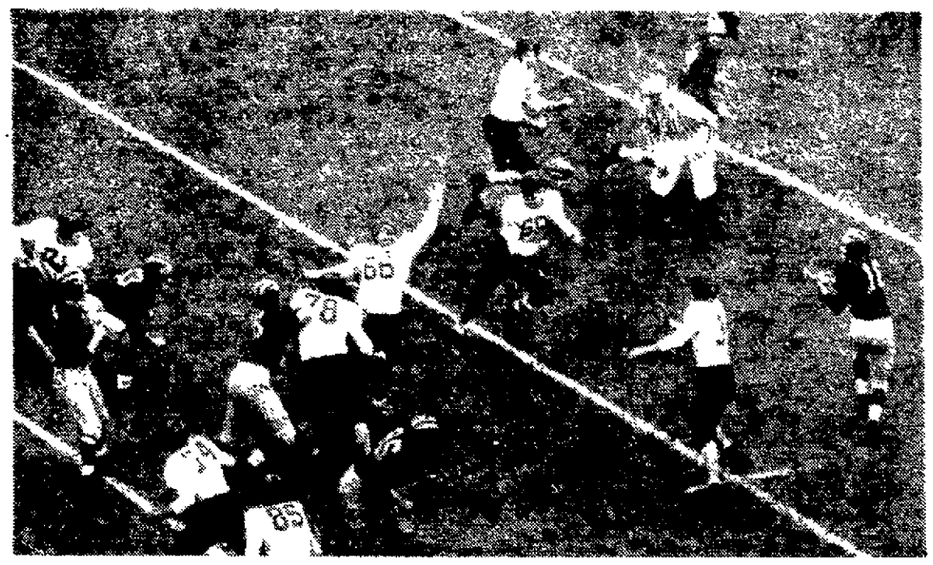
Indiana	0	0	0	0—0
Michigan	7	14	13	20—54

Michigan scoring: Touchdowns, Peterson, Kempthorn, Allis, Ortmann, Rifenburg, Teninga, Dufek, N. Jackson. Points after touchdown—Allis 6 (placements).

Augie to Tell How It Happened

Augie Morningstar, Tyger athletic director and football coach, should have some fine stories to tell at tomorrow's Tyger booster club meeting at 7:30 p. m. at the Senior high school auditorium.

Morningstar will give his version of the Tygers' 27-to-20 victory over Hamilton and a scouting report of the game coming up with Martins Ferry next Friday. The game is listed at the Ohio river town. The Ferry team has won eight and tied one to rank in the top five in Ohio.



MICHIGAN COMPLETES PASS—Chuck Ortmann (to left of No. 74) threw a jump pass into the waiting arms of halfback Leo Koceski (18) who moved to Indiana 4-yard line in first quarter. Ball can be seen near head of No. 59. For Indiana: Jerry Morrical (71), tackle; John Goldsberry (78), tackle; Joe Pnoice (59), center. (AP Wirephoto).

City Court League Stars To Battle Rens Wednesday

Completing the Urschel roster are: Bob Nikolaus, Jim Robertson, Wayne Hough, Dick Flockenzier, Lee Crownover, Frank Jocha and Bob Caldwell. Reminder of the squad includes: Dick Casad, Rogers Jewelry; Jack Hammett, Sport Center; Ed Chatlain and Fred Lewis, Martin Hardware; Wilbur Wade and Dick Roberts, Richland Beverage.

The all-star team will practice Monday at 8:20 p. m. at Senior high.

Several of the Rens who appeared here last year are still on the squad. Only Dolly King will be missing and he is playing pro football with the Chicago Rockets. The old favorites are: Sonny Wood, Pop Gates, George Crowe and Hank DeZonie.

Ashland Myers Pump will battle Komito's Clothes in the preliminary contest at 7:45 p. m. The Komito's squad has such stars as Jim "Stretch" Regular, Ralph Majors, Don Hardy, Russ McBride, Dick Gross and Kenny Windsor.

Tickets are on sale at the City News, Yunckers, Ideal Billiards and Park Avenue News.

Cage Officials Plan Discussion Of Rules, Movie

A full program of rules demonstrations and a movie has been planned by President Jimmy Lymper for the meeting of the North Central Ohio Officials association Monday.

The association will meet at the Naval Training Center, Ashland road, with all coaches invited to sit in. A movie, "Basketball Today," official organ of the Ohio High School Athletic association, will be shown.

George Donges and Tony Grant will discuss "Instructions to Timers and Scorers," Joe Atton will review double and multiple fouls and Jay Winters and Gabby Gallant will go over dribble situations.

Lymper plans to discuss arm signals and to have several of the Johnny Appleseed junior high players demonstrate personal fouls.

McBride Is Sued By Nevada Gamblers

CARSON CITY, Nev. —(AP)— The owners of Continental Press Service are accused in federal court of trying to monopolize the distribution of horse racing results.

A suit filed yesterday by three Las Vegas, Nev., gambling club operators, accused Tom Kelley of Chicago and Arthur (Mickey) McBride, wealthy Cleveland resident, of violating the Sherman anti-trust act. McBride is the owner of the Cleveland football Browns.

The complaint alleges that Kelley and McBride created a conspiracy and combination in restraint of trade and commerce in news among the States, and attempted to monopolize a part of that trade.

Tyger Sophs Beaten, 12-0 At Massillon

MASSILLON — Mansfield took its third gridiron licking of the season from Massillon here yesterday as the Tyger sophomores were beaten 12-0. Massillon had taken a previous sophomore game and the varsity a tilt.

The Ti-Tigers drove over on a sustained march in the first period with Fullback Howe scoring on a three-yard plunge then tallied again on a freak fourth quarter play.

With a minute and a half to go Mansfield completed a desperation pass from its own 20. Bill Stutz who caught the aerial, was tackled hard and let the ball pop out of his hands. Massillon's Greer picked it off in the air, tucked it away and ran through the confused Tygers for the second score.

Mansfield had only one scoring threat all during the game. It drove to the eight yard line but Fullback Clarence Bailey gave the ball away on a fumble after picking up enough yards for a first down.

Center Walter Maurer and Guard Phil Lindsey were outstanding on defense for the Tyger Sophs.

Phillips Throws Six Scoring Passes

Rose Bowl Bid Still Possible

By JERRY LISKA

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — (AP) —Rampaging Ohio State, lone obstacle between Michigan and an undefeated season, yesterday plastered its worst defeat on favored Illinois, 34-7, and kept the Buckeyes' faint Rose Bowl hopes alive.

The super-charged Buckeyes, who close their Big Nine campaign against Michigan next Saturday, pulverized the Illini with grinding land power and opportune passing.

65,732 SEE GAME

An Illini homecoming throng of 65,732 saw the Bucks methodically fashion a 13-7 lead through three quarters and then explode for three last period touchdowns.

The same Illini team which held Army to a 26-21 victory never had a chance against the shattering plunges of Fullback Joe Whisler and the rabbit-speed of other Buckeye backs.

STATISTICS:

	Ohio State	Illinois
First Downs	20	8
Net Yards Gained Rushing	364	48
Forward Passes Attempted	15	14
Forward Passes Completed	6	6
Yards Forward Passing	85	80
Forwards Intercepted By	4	2
Yards Gained, Runback Interceptions	27	0
Punting Average	34	33
Total Yards, All Kicks Returned	89	111
Opponent Fumbles Recovered	0	0
Yards Lost By Penalties	50	5

The win gave Ohio State a 3-2 conference record with only Michigan remaining to play. Northwestern, with a 4-1 record, closes against Illinois. An Ohio State upset of Michigan might well plump the Bucks into the Rose Bowl.

The Bucks struck for a 13-0 three-quarters lead on Pandel Savic's 10-yard payoff pass to Jerry Krall in the first period and Krall's 10-yard end sweep early in the third period.

Illinois showed its teeth for the first and only time in the third period when Bernie Krueger hit End Walt Kersulis on a 17-yard touchdown pass, trimming Ohio's lead to 13-7.

GROW STRONGER

But the determined Buckeyes, growing stronger all the way, made three last period touchdowns.

First, Krall pitched a 9-yard touchdown toss to back Alex Verdova. Then Bucky Wertz, third string quarterback, flipped a 39-yard pass to Jim Hague on Ohio's five and burly Whisler banged over from that point.

The fifth Ohio State touchdown came on an unscheduled play. Sub Fullback Curly Morrison was back to punt, with fourth down 10 on Ohio's 45. Hard rushed, Morrison started to run and, behind a phalanx of blockers, easily scampered 55 yards for a touchdown.

Hague booted four of his five Ohio State conversion tries, while Don Maechtle added his sole point try for Illinois.

Illinois, a one-touchdown favorite, never was in the game despite the closeness of the first half, which gave Ohio State a modest 7-0 lead.

The Buckeyes amassed a whopping 364 yards by rushing to only 49 for Illinois. In the aerial department, both teams were fairly even. Ohio State completed six of 15 tosses for 85 yards and Illinois hit on six out of 14 for 80.

The Buckeyes followed a pattern of smashing Whisler into line, frisking Krall, Clark and Verdova on the outside and letting Savic pitch whenever the Illini bunched its defense.

Whisler carried 18 times for 114 yards, a 6.3 average, while Krall scooted 17 times for 93 and Clark 13 for 52.

SALISBURY, Md —(AP)—The New York Yankee baseball club has shifted seven players from its Easton farm team in the Eastern Shore league.

They include: Don Maxa, outfielder from Mantua, O., league batting champion, and Chet Ross, 15-3 pitcher, to Binghampton (N. Y.) of the Eastern league. Bernie Durand, pitcher, to Butler (Pa.) of the Middle Atlantic league.

Pitt Surprises Purdue By 20-13

LAFAYETTE, Ind.—(AP)—Pittsburgh's Panthers shook loose Jimmy Joe Robinson for a 100-yard touchdown run and scored two others with short rushes yesterday in a 20-13 victory over the Purdue Boilermakers.

Purdue had a big margin in the statistics but lost the ball four times on fumbles and twice was held for downs on the Pitt nine-yard stripe.

Pitt's Lou Cecconi returned a Purdue punt 40 yards to set up a one-yard scoring plunge by fullback Carl Depasqua in the early minutes of the game.

Harry Szulborski of Purdue, leading rusher in the western conference, made a 56-yard, S-shaped touchdown run in the second quarter. Robinson took the following kickoff on his goal line and zigzagged the length of the field.

Nick Bolkovac had placekicked both extra points for Pitt, while guard Bernie Barkouskie had blocked the point-after-touchdown try by Purdue's Rudy Trbovich. The Panthers held a 14-6 margin at the half.

A blocked Purdue punt set up an eight-yard scoring run by Robinson in the fourth quarter. Bolkovac missed the extra-point kick but Purdue needed 14 points to tie and couldn't get them.

Purdue scored with 40 seconds to go on an 80-yard punt return, Bob Hartman catching the kick on his 20 and handed it to Kenny Gorgal for the rest of the trip.

It was Pitt's second victory over a big nine team this season.

California Romps to Ninth Win

By RUSS NEWLAND

BERKELEY, Calif. —(AP) — California's Bears, generating the same tremendous power that has kept them unbeaten and untied, scored a crushing 44-14 victory over the Washington State Cougars yesterday.

A crowd of 40,000, watched the bruising Bears rattle off long touchdown marches, turn intercepted passes into scores and tally on a safety.

The Cougars, though badly beaten, scored touchdowns in the second and final quarters. The last was on a spectacular 87-yard kickoff runback by Jerry Williams.

It was California's ninth win of the season and fifth consecutive conference triumph. The Bears, in their next to last engagement of the regular schedule, made an impressive showing to remain neck and neck with the University of Oregon in the race to the Rose Bowl.

Oregon, incidentally, kept its conference slate clean with a 26-7 win over UCLA last night.

The initial score came late in the opening period when Jack Swaner went over from the one foot line, climaxing a 35-yard advance. Swaner also counted the second touchdown, battering through for the last yard on the tail end of an 86-yard drive.

Washington State came back with a 21-yard touchdown scoring pass from quarterback Bob Gambold to left end Frank Polsfoot. The Bears retaliated with a 79-yard thrust with fullback Jackie Jensen racing around left end for the last three yards. The score was 21-7 at halftime, and the Bears just kept going from there.

Tomorrow's the day!

At 9 a. m. the 1948 pheasant and rabbit season gets under way with a bang (no pun intended) and a lot of powder will be burned between then and quitting time, 4 p.m.

All signs point to a record number of hunters and an average amount of game, so bag limits shouldn't be too plentiful. In Richland county, there appears to be an abundance of rabbits, but birds are a little harder to find.

A tip to the wise—Grafton, Lagrange, Penfield, and Huntington have some good bird territory and cooperative farmers. Only about 40 miles from here, so—'nuff said.

Concerning cooperative farmers, either in or out of Richland county, an open gate this year may mean a closed farm next year. This is only one of many little things which peril farmer-hunter relationships but will serve to illustrate the point.

Daily and possession limits are four rabbits, two pheasants (cock birds only), and no figures have been set for fellow nimrods. Take it easy on 'em, though, the last war depleted our stock. With so many hunters taking to the fields, someone is going to get hurt. Make certain it isn't YOU or one of your buddies.

Members of the Richland County Fish and Game association are to be commended for their far-reaching plan for a game reserve, but B. R. Guthrie of Shiloh also comes in for a nice round of applause.

Through the efforts of Guthrie, the Garrett-Riest American Legion post now has a five-year lease on 200 acres of land. It's to be used as a reserve with no hunting for the first year. Extensive stocking is scheduled.

The reserve has been named for Guthrie, and a committee composed of Woodrow Shaffer, Eugene Russell and Robert Bushey has been appointed to advance plans for improving the acreage.

In checking the files to determine just what has and has not appeared in Mal Hartley's column I find he did an outstanding job. That's not difficult to explain—he has an inborn love of the outdoors and it appears in his writing.

However, he makes it tougher for me since a lot of my efforts will fall short. One consolation, though, I can always use that as an alibi!

For the past three years I've been lucky enough to spend considerable time hunting and fishing in the South, particularly in Arkansas, and know some of you have questions about that part of the country insofar as sports are concerned.

From time to time I'll drop in a paragraph or two of generalities and will try to answer any questions you might ask. Few outdoorsmen from the North get a chance to take the float trips where five-pound smallmouths abound; few have seen deer so plentiful that the law allows two per year; and even fewer have been able to go duck hunting in the morning, follow it up with a day's fishing, then shoot a limit of squirrels before sundown. Even in this day of pollution and vanishing game, the South has a wide open sporting front and visitors are welcome.

Right now, though, I have to think up some alibi to get out of work about 9 a. m. tomorrow.

I feel a severe attack of pheasantitis coming on.

Gophers Edge Stubborn Iowa

IOWA CITY, Ia.—(AP)—Massive Minnesota bruised its way to a 28-21 victory over Iowa yesterday in a sizzling flurry of touchdowns.

The underdog Hawks gave their husky Big Nine rivals a terrific battle for three quarters but in the end it was Minnesota's power that paid off.

Iowa, unshaken by two costly fumbles deep in Gopher territory, fought back three times to tie the score. The Iowa enthusiasts in the crowd of 42,000 nursed hopes for an upset similar to the Hawks' 13-7 win in 1947.

It didn't come. Minnesota recovered a fourth quarter Iowa fumble on the Gophers' 18 and they took off on the drive that brought them their fourth conference victory and kept alive faint Rose Bowl dreams.

Minnesota drove and passed to three touchdowns. They came on marches of 62, 47 and 61 yards. Little Billy Bye did the scoring on short spurts each time. Gordon Soltau added the extra points.

Iowa, afire with determination, matched those first three touchdowns. But the tired Hawks couldn't halt the last Gopher splurge, and they were unable to match the clinching Minnesota touchdown in the last quarter.

78,000 See Upstart Penn Miss Upset

By GAYLE TALBOT

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) —Only 30 seconds away from defeat at the hands of an amazing University of Pennsylvania eleven, Army struck 15 yards through the air for a touchdown and a 26-to-20 victory that tore the hearts out of the majority of 78,000 spectators yesterday.

Overwhelming favorites seeking their eighth straight triumph, the Cadets were forced to fight from behind three times and needed a dazzling 103-yard runback of a kickoff by Bobby Jack Stuart to subdue the Battling Quakers. It was a thriller all the way.

30 SECONDS

The big clock showed exactly a half-minute to go when Arnold Galiffa, Army quarterback, fell back and fired a strike into the arms of John Trent, an end, beyond Penn's goal line to settle the issue. The vast crowd, a moment before yelling almost as one, fell silent, stricken.

Only moments before Rav Dooney, Penn's stocky, 200-pound fullback, had blasted through Army's line and legged it 42 yards for the score that put the Quakers in front, 20-19, and apparently spelled Army's doom. Few would have risked a thin dime on the Cadet's chances of keeping an unblemished slate.

Then Army took an out-of-bounds kick on its own 26, and with the minutes ticking off Galiffa began throwing footballs. In six plays, including a 21-yard Galiffa to Dave Parrish aerial, the Black Knights swept to the Quaker 15, and on third down Galiffa hit the jackpot.

FUMBLED TWICE

For Galiffa, the winning toss made last-minute amends for two glaring fumbles he committed in the first half, on each of which the aroused Penn team capitalized in full.

Dooney, in addition to his touchdown dash in the final period, had passed to end Bob Sponaugle from one yard out for Penn's first score in the opening quarter and had lugged the leather across for the Quakers' second tally to keep his team in front 14-13 at the half.

His father died on Wednesday, and the funeral at Atlantic City has been postponed until next Monday so that Dooney could get his shot at the West Point crowd. That he didn't personally superintend the season's crowning upset was no fault of the man who is built like a mail box.

Penn proved that Army's vaunted running attack could be contained. Gil Stephenson, the "new Doc Blanchard," was stopped almost cold by Chuck Bednarik and his husky teammates. But for Galiffa's passing, Army would have taken a beating.

ITHACA, N. Y. —(AP— Cornell smashed over two touchdowns in the last quarter yesterday to climax a thrilling comeback with a 27-26 victory over Dartmouth on the margin of Bob Dean's placement point. A crowd of 30,000 watched the Ivy league contest.

College Football Games In Capsule Form

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK — (AP) — Touchdowns were as scarce as diamonds in a junk heap today for Notre Dame, Army, Georgia Tech, Tennessee, Kansas, and Southern Methodist of college football's reigning family but all got enough markers to win except the two southern elevens.

In contrast Michigan, North Carolina, Duke, California, Penn State and Ohio State clicked off seven pointers with the regularity of robots for lopsided victories.

A pair of unknowns brought Notre Dame the touchdown it so desperately needed to subdue Northwestern, 12 to 7. The fourth period score was the result of the combined efforts of Bill Gay and John Landry. The game was the 26th in a row without defeat for Notre Dame but it also proved that the Big Nine team was a worthy Rose Bowl candidate.

Arnold Galiffa's touchdown pass to John Trent with 30 seconds to go permitted Army to continue its unbeaten way with a 26 to 20 verdict over Pennsylvania.

'BAMA UPSETS TECH

Alabama turned a fumble and an intercepted pass into the two touchdowns it needed to defeat Georgia Tech, 14 to 12, and Mississippi simply outsped Tennessee, 16 to 13, although the decisive points came on a safety.

Southern Methodist's great Doak Walker kicked the two extra points that gave his club a 14 to 12 verdict over Arkansas, whose Clyde Scott was carried from the field in the first quarter. Walker carried the ball seven times and lost 10 yards.

But it was different at other gridirons. Michigan annihilated Indiana, 54 to 0; Ohio State smothered Illinois, 34 to 7; North Carolina, with Charlie Justice held in check on the ground, drubbed Maryland, in the air, 49 to 20; California scalped Washington State, 44 to 14; Duke dumped George Washington, 62 to 0; and Penn State handled Temple, 47 to 0.

In between the two extremes there were such thrillers as Cornell's 27 to 26 victory over Dartmouth; Yale's rugged display before losing to Princeton, 20 to 14; Pittsburgh's 20 to 13, conquest of Purdue; Clemson's 21 to 14 triumph over Wake Forest that kept the Tigers unbeaten and in the bowl forefront.

Clemson has only the Citadel left to play in southern conference play and is almost certain to wind up with part of the loop flag. Georgia, with Johnny Rauch doing the passing, spilled Auburn 42 to 14, for its fifth southeast conference victory and the leadership in that circuit.

TEXAS WINS

Texas, which is in the southwest circuit race with Baylor and SMU, crept past Texas Christian, 14 to 7, to keep the pennant drive a three-way affair.

Baylor, beaten for the first time last week, was humbled in a non-league affair by Tulane, 35 to 13. The ease of the triumph kept the New Orleans club in the bowl limelight—possibly in the Sugar Bowl.

Kansas almost bowed to Kansas State, a team that hasn't won a Big Seven game since 1944. Kansas State came within six yards of the touchdown that would have meant either a tie or a possible victory. As it was, the team lost, 20 to 14. Oklahoma boiled over Nebraska, 41 to 14, and Missouri conquered Colorado, 27 to 13.

Michigan State larrupped Iowa State, 48 to 7, in one intersectional fray while another, that between William & Mary and Boston College, ended in a 14 to 14 deadlock.

NINTH FOR BEARS

California won its ninth game of the season by crushing Washington State and continues to hold the Rose Bowl spotlight with Oregon, which last night crushed UCLA. Southern California stopped Washington, 32 to 7.

Denver kept Utah State from clinching a Big Six title tie, 41 to 6, but Colorado A & M wrapped up second place with 20 to 0 verdict over Brigham Young.

Harvard overcame an early Brown touchdown, 30 to 19, while Columbia pasted another defeat on the Navy record, 13 to 0.

BeeGees, 38-7

BOWLING GREEN — (AP) — Unbeaten Bowling Green rolled to its eighth straight football win yesterday by defeating Morningside college of Sioux City, Ia., 38-7.

The visitors scored their only touchdown in the first quarter as Bee Gee Coach Bob Whittaker tried to rest a few of his regulars.

Thereafter, employing all their power, the Ohioans scored twice in each of the last three periods. They were sparked by Quarterback Max Minnich, whose passing and running and pass interception accounted for most of the Falcons' scoring.

He passed twice to Schnelker for the next touchdown, and in the final period he set up another touchdown with a 21-yard runback of an intercepted pass. Again in the final period he intercepted a pass and returned it 30 yards to set up the final score.
